RITCHIE URGES STATE CONTROL OF LIQUOR TO RELIEVE TAX BURDEN

French Lick, Ind., June 2.—"You cannot have from 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 people wanting work and unable to get it without knowing that this constitutes a challenge to our social order, and that it is the strongest argument for communism unless it is solved", declared Gov. Albert C. Ritch of Maryland, in presiding at the annual conference of Governors this afternoon.

Referring to prohibition, the Maryland executive said that if this question is turned back to the States, a system of excise taxes may again be built up which might do away altogether with federal income taxes and at "one stroke relieve capital, labor and agriculture from the tax burdens which rest so heavily upon them".

Today's sessions of the conference were crowded with speeches, including gubernatorial shop talk, the warning of Governor Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania against "the domination of public utilities in political life", and the paper by Gov. Frank D. Roosevelt of New York on land utilization.

"The power of public utilities", Gov. Pinchot asserted, "is manifest in every political assembly from Congress to town meeting. He added that "interstate commerce in electric current is still outside either federal or State control".

Gov. Roosevelt said he could not take a "Pollyanna" attitude toward present day economic problems. "It is not enough to talk about being of good cheer", he said. "A new economic and social balance calls for positive leadership and definite experiments which have not hitherto been tried".

The New York Governor suggested diversification of industrial life by sending a fair proportion of it into the rural districts as one of the definite possibilities of the future. Cheap electric power, good roads and automobiles make such a rural development feasible, he said.

"There are many industries which can succeed just as well, if not better", Gov. Roosevelt said, "by bringing them to rural communities and at the same time these rural communities will be given higher annual income capacity".

Gov. Ritchie's remarks came as a surprise to the score of State executives attending the conference. The Marylander said that if he were to offer any criticism of the annual conferences it would be that "we strive too hard to keep controversial subjects out of our discussions".

"The States are the governmental laboratories of the nation", said Ritchie. "They are the agencies for political trial and experiment. Yet we, the representatives of the States, refrain from debating those questions which are the realities of our national life.

"For instance, if any one thing is clear, it is that our people are becoming tired of the old conjure words in American politics, and are concerned instead about getting or keeping their jobs".

SEVEN MORE CHARGES AGAINST GOV. HORTON

Nashville, Tenn., June 2.—Blame for the depositing of millions of State funds in the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary of Caldwell & Co., investment banking house both of which are now defunct, was placed on Gov. Henry H. Horton in one of seven additional articles of impeachment against him which were reported to the Tennessee House of Representatives today.

It was charged that on August 14, 1930, the Governor called the State Funding Board into session and that some member of it, in the Governor's presence and with his knowledge and participation directed preparation of a resolution that "undertook" to make the "so-called" Bank of Tennessee the depository of all State bridge funds.

More than $3,000,000 of bridge funds was on deposit when the bank failed last November.

The first article of impeachment, reported to the House by its committee last week, charged Governor Horton conspired with Rogers Caldwell, financier, and Col. Luke Lea, newspaper publisher and politician, to influence governmental affairs for their personal gain in exchange for their political support. Caldwell was president of Caldwell & Co., and the Bank of Tennessee.

CHAFFEE BOY BREAKS NECK IN DIVE, BUT IS EXPECTED TO SURVIVE

Chaffee, June 2.—Louis Gilmer, 14, Chaffee school boy, is recovering from a fracture of the neck, which, it has since been learned, he sustained Friday afternoon while swimming in Diversion Channel on Highway 25 between here and Dutchtown. Louis dived into the water and struck a hidden obstruction, thought to have been a bar of mud.

The lad, a good swimmer, got out of the stream himself, and did not feel especially bad at the time. He went home soon, however, nad an X-ray picture made later revealed a piece of bone was chipped from the left side of a vertebra near the base of his skull.

Louis is allowed to sit up, and attending physicians believe danger of paralysis has passed. Some stiffness may result, it is thought, due to the fracture.

At the time of the accident a number of Chaffee boys were at the swimming place. Louis is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gilmer.

FARMER CRANKS CAR IN GEAR: RESULT—ONE WRECKED OIL STATION

When Dick Nelson, farmer living north of town, drove into the Kingshighway Cities Service Station Wednesday morning, his intentions were honorable. He carried a grudge against no man in particular. When he left he had created a considerable uproar, damaged his car slightly, and partialy at least wrecked the station.

Nelson cranked his car after oil and gas had been added and the bill squared. The machine started suddenly and crashed into the lattice fence, and sheared off a 20-foot 3-inch iron post which supported one of the station's flood lights.

The car hood was dented, the pole sheared off and one section of fence wrecked in the process. Nelson jumped aside and escaped injury.

Broadcasting Will Aid World Harmony

A future in which races throughout the world will use English as a secondary language is envisaged by General James G. Harbord, who was Chief of Staff of the A. E. F. and now is President of the Radio Corporation of America, writing on radio as an instrument for promoting international understanding and peace.

Since the greater and most appealing part of the world's broadcast entertainment is offered in English from America and the British Isles, radio has provided the strongest incentive in history for many races to master a common tongue, General Harbord points o t.

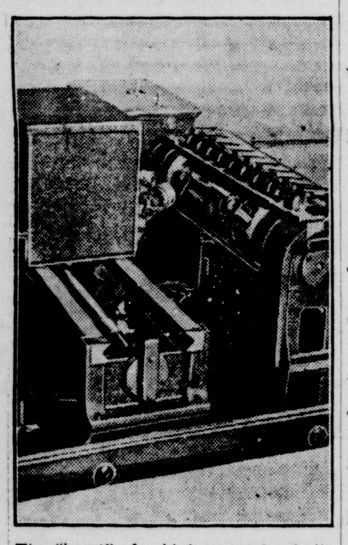
"We must not forget," he says, "that the nations' confusion of tongues has in itself been one of the most fruitful sources of international division and misunderstanding. People distrust what they do not understand; let them develop a common medium of communication and still another cause of distrust will fall by the wayside of human progress."

Radio and its allied science, television, will prove as valuable and perhaps more valuable than all diplomatic conferences in assuring universal peace for the future, General Harbord believes.

PHOTORADIO MAKES STRIKING ADVANCE

Photoradio has made such strides recently that it promises more than ever to fulfill some day the forecast of Owen D. Young at a dinner given in 1923 to General James G. Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation, that it eventually will make it possible to flash whole pages of newspapers across the ocean.

The most recent developments are the simplification of photoradio apparatus, greater speed and the reduction in rates between New York and London which just has been announced by W. A. Winterbottom, Vice-President in charge of communications of R. C. A. Communications, Inc. The reduction was made possible by the simplification and the greater speed. The new rate is figured in centimeters,



The "heart" of a high speed facsimile transmitter

but is approximately $2 a square inch. The old rate was $3.20 a square inch.

The accompanying cut shows the group of lights, called the "doughnut light," which center illumination on a point on the picture or printed matter placed on a roller across from them. This light beam is reflected from the picture or printed matter into the photocell box behind the lights. The "doughnut" is on a carriage which moves across and back in front of the roller. After every trip the carriage makes from one side to the other, the roller turns ever so slightly.

As the spot of light from the "doughnut" passes back and forth the lightness and darkness of the points it touches change the intensity of the reflected beam. The reflected beam produces electrical impulses, which are amplified, sent by radio to a receiver hundreds of miles away and changed by the receiver to electrical impulses again. These electrical impulses cause a neon light to glow at intervals timed perfectly with the beam of light reflected from the picture on the transmitter. The glow of the neon light is reproduced on photographic paper, placed in the same position on a roller on the receiver that the original is in on the transmitter. Thus an exact duplicate of the original is made.

COWS GIVE MORE MILK BY RADIO

The first test under practical dairying conditions of providing radio music for cows has proved a big success, according to officials of the Detroit Creamery Company, near Mount Clemens, Mich. The creamery company officials bought RCA loudspeakers for each of their barns when they noticed the cows liked the music from a Radiola receiving set installed to entertain the men doing the milking. Now all the 900 cows on the model farm enjoy radio programs.

THE INDIVIDUAL AND HIS BANK

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

R. C. STEPHENSON

BANKERS recognize that their business carries especially heavy public responsibilities and welcome all sound measures to aid them meet the duties this imposes. Unceasing efforts to bring about continually improving methods to safeguard depositors in banks of all kinds have long been uppermost in the plans of bankers' organizations throughout the nation. They are not the outgrowth merely of the past year of business adversity, but have been carried on actively for many years and have resulted in great progress along lines of better, safer banking methods. Although banking along with all business has suffered reverses, conditions in this field have been far less severe than they would have been had not bankers been widely successful in their endeavors to develop the high standards of banking that now generally prevail.

The American Bankers Association and bankers' organizations in every state actively support the principle of government supervision of banking. The national banks, which receive their charters to do business from the federal government, are under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington. Through his efficient staffs of expert bank examiners in every section he has the duty and powers to keep watch of the way every national bank is being conducted, to suggest desirable changes in its policies or methods and even to step in and take control for the protection of the depositors if such action is warranted. The state banks, also, which are chartered by the various state governments, are subject to similar supervision and control by state bank officials. In addition banks in many places have long maintained voluntary clearing house associations which enforce even closer supervision over their members.

Bankers Favor Public Supervision

Present laws adequately enforced contain ample provisions for government supervision. Bankers universally believe in strong, capable banking departments manned by officials with the discretion and courage to enforce these laws and act under them as the common welfare demands. They believe that these public officials should be paid sufficient salaries to command the services of men of character, ability and a resolute spirit of public service. They believe also that the banking departments should be kept free from all political or other special influence in order to be able to act at all times with single-minded independence solely for the benefit of the public interest.

Although banks in the United States operating under state or national charters are thus subject to supervision of public authority, they are strictly private business enterprises. They are owned by their stockholders and administered by officials chosen through the boards of directors which their stockholders elect. No bank is owned or operated by the United States Government, nor, with one small exception in a western state, by any state government. The function of government in banking is to promote and enforce careful banking administration through the system of examination and supervision which I have described. This, however, does not relieve the individual depositor from the necessity of judging and choosing carefully as to his banking relations, just as in his other business or professional relations. He must inquire for himself into the character and type of institution and men he shall do business with, satisfying himself as to their reputation, reliability and capability. These qualities are essential to complete the element of safety and dependability in any human institution.

An Illusory Law

The bank deposit guaranty law in any form is a snare and a delusion, declares a banker in a state where it has been tried, adding: "It is a license and encouragement to irresponsible banks and banking and penalizes capital solvency and prudent banking. It creates a sense of security in the minds of the unthinking and uninformed that is false and impossible to be realized on ultimately. To compare it to legitimate insurance is without reason and absurd. It jeopardizes the solvency of all banks and the safety of all depositors for the theoretical safety of a few. Guaranty schemes always have been, are and always will be impotent, futile and disastrous. It is not new. Has been tried, failed and discarded at intervals for more than 100 years in this country. No well-informed, honest and intelligent mind can accept it in principle or practice. Competent bank supervision and restriction of banks to territory that will warrant sufficient capital investment and accounts is the only sane and honest course and will afford all the guaranty the depositing public is entitled to as compared with all other human affairs."

Little Journeys in Americana

By LESTER B. COLBY

Most Profitable Investment in History.

QUEEN ISABELLA, of Spain, hocking her royal earbobs to make possible the discovery of America has given the world a romantic story. But the actual cost of the expediton and the method by which it was financed reveals another picture.

Recent research has shown that the "overhead" of the entire voyage only amounted to about 36,000 pesetas which, reduced to good, hard United States coin, would be about $7,200! Or less than one per cent of what a modern pugilistic champion has been paid for socking an ambitious rival through ten rounds of rough house with pillowed mitts.

Martin and Vicente Pinzon, brothers, it now appears, did more than anyone else except, perhaps, Columbus himself, to organize the expedition. Their old account books, recently discovered, reveal the part they played in the affair and indicate that no member of the party would suffer much today in matters of income tax.

The Pinzons not only supplied two ships for the voyage, the Pinto and Nina, but captained them as well. Columbus, as commander of the expedition, was paid the equivalent of $300 and the two Pinzons got $180 each. Members of the crew got $2.50 a month, and the cost of food per man was fixed at $1.20 a month.

All of the guns on the three ships were invoiced at an equivalent of about $2,800 or approximately the cost of one loading for a modern heavy caliber gun. The entire pay roll of Columbus, for pilots and sailors, cooks and cabin boys, for the round trip, figures out about $3,660.

The purchasing power of money, of course, was far greater at that time. For a number of centuries very little new gold had been brought into Europe and silver was scarce. Gold wears out. For hundreds of years the gold supply of Europe had been dwindling. Much of it was lost because it has always been the custom to bury more or less gold with the dead in form of ornaments.

Shortage of gold had brought centuries of ever-increasing poverty to Europe, for only with a plentiful supply of money do prices for commodities advance. Paper banknotes were a later invention.

Prosperity returned to Europe as a result of Columbus' discovery of the New world. When the Spanish conquistadores discovered the lavish stores of gold and silver in the hands of the Indians of South and Central America and Mexico, they straightway grabbed it, loaded it into chests and shipped it home to Spain.

It is interesting to know that an expenditure of $7,200 invested in the first expedition of Columbus lifted all Europe out of a period of depression and despond that had persisted with increasing acuteness for centuries and gave it prosperity. It is probably safe to say that the money spent for the voyage of the Santa Maria, Nina and Pinto was the most profitable commercial investment in the history of the world.

The thing that amazes us today is the fact that this new-found discovery, the account books of the Pinzons, reveals the smallness of the financial investment. It is apparent that Queen Isabella's self-denial in donating the royal baubles was not great.

It is evident that what she gave was largely prestige much as Mrs. John J. Smith, wife of the village banker, might loan her name, along with donating a cake, to put over an Epworth league supper. But Isabella's gesture had rare value—for publicity purposes.

Why a Boy Breaks Off Right Arm of All Dolls

To that bench, or one near it, often comes a young woman with her little four-year-old son, whom she calls "Buddy."

The little boy invariably has a doll with him, though not always the same one. The girl has been puzzled because each of these dolls has its right arm missing. She took it for granted that, through some strange coincidence, a similar accident had happened to each of the dolls.

So, the other evening, when, in looking for something in the drawers of her wardrobe trunk, she ran across a cowboy doll that some one had given her, she at once thought of Buddy. The next day she gave him the doll and he was delighted with it.

But yesterday, she and Buddy and his mother sought the same bench and Buddy was playing with his new doll. And its right arm was missing!

"It's his own idea," she said. "He does that to all his dolls. You see he's crazy about his father. He thinks he is perfect in every way. And his father," and her voice trembled just a little and her eyes were misty, "his father lost an arm at Verdun."—New York Sun.

"WILD LIFE" COPIES FREE ON REQUEST

Twenty-five thousand copies of the 1931 edition of the Missouri Outdoor Life Guide published annually by the State Game and Fish Department, are now ready for distribution, according to John H. Ross, Commissioner of the department. The maps and guides are being sent postpaid to persons writing the Bureau of Public Information, Missouri Game and Fish Department, Jefferson City.

In addition to a map showing the highways, principal fishing streams and lakes, the two-color folder also shows strip maps of routes through Kansas City and St. Louis, guide maps of Bennett Spring, Roaring River, Montauk and Big Spring State parks, a schedule of accommodations available at each of the fourteen State parks, illustrations of native fish of Missouri and a list of streams in which they may be taken. Lists of float trip outfitters, upland game and waterfowl hunting places also are listed.

Roaring River State Park in Barry County will be opened for the 1931 season on Decoration Day. This is the only State Park where furnished modern cabin accommodations are available and is very popular with persons seeking rest and recreation in Missouri's Ozarks.

Roaring River State Park, comprising 2400 acres of scenic hill country, was presented to the State of Missouri by Dr. T. M. Sayman of St. Louis, in December, 1928. A beautifully picturesque country of wooded landscape, it is one of those natural wonders for which the Ozarks are unique.

The spring from which Roaring River rises is one of the features of the park. It issues from a hillside and forms the headwaters of Roaring River. It is one of the few large springs in the State immune from overflow. Rainbow Lake, on which trout fish h atchery equipment is located, lies between two ranges of hills. Swimming, fishing, exploring, hiking and camping with other outdoor sports may be enjoyed at this park. A swimming pool bath house is among the special attractions. Modern cabins are available and during the summer months a dining room is operated.

The park can be reached via a county road which connects with State Highway No. 4 a few miles east of Cassville or from a country road which connects with State Highway No. 37 at Seligman.

THE STRANGEST ARGUMENT

It is interesting to reflect that the strongest argument against the adoption of unqualified anti-gun laws by either the States or the Federal government, is the crime situation itself.

In many of the great cities in which crime flourishes and is a leading "industry", anti-gun laws are already in effect. Some of them are extremley strict. But only the law-abiding citizen feels the weight of the restriction. It seems not exaggerating to say that the anti-gun laws actually deprive the law-abiding of protection to their homes or places of business.

What is needed is correction for the unlawful use of firearms and not restriction of the vast bulk of citizens who use guns only for a safeguard or for sport. This would leave the good citizen with his constitutional right to protection for himself and his family.

Those zealots who are always soapboxing in favor of unqualified anti-gun laws, might do well to think this over if their real object is the reduction of crime and safety for society.

WORDS OF WISDOM

The Saturday Evening Post, in a recent well-worded, calm and deliberate editorial, points out a real danger from communist activities in the United States today. It shows that there is no reason for hysteria but that there is definite reason for curbing this menace within our own boundaries.

It believes in neither a fool's paradise type of indulgence on the one hand, nor violent suppression and reaction on the other.

In concluding its comments, it says: "It takes effort, even for a nation as great as this, to remain sound and whole".

WOULD YOU RECOGNIZE YOUR FRIENDS BY THEIR SCIENTIFIC COGNOMEN?

When ten members of an ornithology class of the University of Missouri and two instructors visited Montauk State Park in Dent County recently on a two-day field trip, a total of 106 different species of birds was observed. The great number of birds seen was conclusive proof of the value of bird sanctuaries, according to Prof. Rudlof Bennitt, of the Zoology Department of the University, who was in charge of the excursion.

The orders represented in the observations included: 2 species of Herodiones (herons, etc.); 4 species of the Limicolae (shore birds); 2 species of the Gallinae (fowls); 1 (cuckoos); 6 species of the Pici specie of Columbae pigeons, etc.); 9 species of the Raptores (hawks and owls); 2 species of the Coccyges (cuckoos); 6 species of the Pici (woodpeckers); 4 species of Macrochire, (swifts); 77 species of Passeres (perching birds); different species represented by families as follows: 6 Tyrannidae (flycatchers); 1 Alaudidae (larks); 2 Corvidae (crows, jays); 6 Icteridae (blackbirds, etc.); 13 Fringillidae (sparrows, finches); 2 Tangaridae (tanagers); 5 Hirundinidae (swallows); 1 Lainiidae (shrikes); 5 Vireonidae (vireos) 20 Minotiltidate (warblers); 2 Mimidae (mocking birds); 2 Troglodytidate (wrens); 1 Sittindae (nuthatches); 2 Paridae (titmice, etc.); 2 Sylviidae (kinglets, etc.) and 5 Turdidae (thrushes).

Montauk State Park lies at the headwaters of Current River and offers springs, fed and cover for the birds.

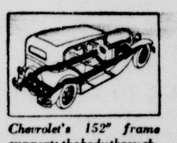
Matchless economy with six-cylinder smoothness

"Better than 20 miles to the gallon." "Its cost-per-mile is the lowest of any car." "Never have to add oil between crankcase changes." "Drove from Ohio to California on a repair expense of $1.05." "It just runs and runs and runs."

—typical comments from owners of the Chevrolet Six



Chevrolet's 152" frame supports the body throughout its entire length

Why is it that Chevrolet—a big, powerful, smooth-running six—actually costs less to operate and maintain than any other car you can buy? The answer lies in five outstanding factors of Chevrolet economy:

1. Efficient Engine Design makes Chevrolet fuel consumption so low that 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline is nothing unusual for a Chevrolet owner.

2. Modern Chassis Design —as evidenced by Chevrolet's long heavy frame, four parallel-mounted springs, and smooth-running six-cylinder engine—increases the ability of the Chevrolet Six to run dependably, day after day.

3. Excellence of Manufacture also adds to Chevrolet dependability and long life. Chevrolet pistons, for instance, are built so carefully, and held true to such close limits of precision, that many owners have gone 20,000 miles or more without having their motors opened for major servicing.

Chevrolet's pistons are built to close limits of precision

4. High-Quality Materials are used throughout the Chevrolet car—costly nickel steel, chrome-vanadium steels, chrome-nickel steels—to assure trouble-free, low-cost service for tens of thousands of miles.

5. Economical Nationwide Service, with its low flat-rate charges on labor and genuine parts, is available at 10,000 dealers throughout the country, who also offer the protection of the most liberal owner's service policy ever to back a low-priced car.

Chevrolet's Owner's Service Policy is the most liberal ever offered in connection with a low-priced car

Remember—in addition to all these basic economies—Chevrolet offers the extra dollars-and-cents advantage of one of the lowest delivered prices on the market. And this cost may be spread over a period of many months by the liberal G.M.A.C. plan.

HIGH COURT REFUSES TO REVIEW FALL CASE

Washington, June 1.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, must present himself before the District of Columbia Supreme Court for commitment under a sentence of one year's imprisonment imposed on him for accepting a bribe.

That became imperative today, except in case of a presidential pardon, when the United States Supreme Court refused to review Fall's conviction of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil operator, in connection with awarding contracts and leases on the naval oil reserves. He was sentneced to one year in prison and fined $100,000.

Previously he had failed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to have the sentence set aside, and then, after announcing he would not carry the controversy to the United States Supreme Court, directed his counsel, Frank J. Hogan, to seek a review by the highest tribunal.

CHARGES ALLIED POWERS PLOTTED TO KILL WILSON

New York, June 1.—An alleged plot by the allied powers to kill Woodrow Wilson by slow poison while he was attending the Paris peace conference is detailed by Maj. Herbert O. Yardley in his book, "America's Black Chamber", published today by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Maj. Yardley, who was in charge of the secret American Cyrptographic Bureau during the war, asserts that a decoded message fell into his hands while he was serving with the peace commission in Paris which disclosed the plot. He goes so far as to intimate that the President's death several years later was the result of the plot.

"The reader may well appreciate the shock I received as I deciphered a telegram which reported an entente plot to assassinate President Wilson either by administering a slow poison or by giving him influenza in ice", Maj. Yardley writes.

"I have no way of knowing whether the plot had any truth in fact, and if it had, whether it succeeded. But there are these undeniable facts: President Wilson's first sign of illness occurred while he was in Paris, and he was soon to die a lingering death".

Maj. Gen. Peyton G. March, chief of staff of the army at the time, and others have avowed they never heard of such a "plot".

Maj. Yardley's book is the first to reveal the inner workings of the "black chamber", which operated secretly decoding confidential messages between representatives of foreign powers. From 1917 to 1929, the period of its existence, the "chamber" decoded 45,000 such messages, Yardley writes.

His work in connection with this and other activitis brought to Maj. Yardley the distinguished service medal from the secretary of war, "who pinned the medal on my lapel and winked at me".

In describing the activities of the bureau which he headed, Maj. Yardley tells how the safe of a foreign minister was opened and his secret code book photographed; how a beautiful girl was directed to become friendly with a secretary of a foreign embassy and to learn the nature of his code book, and how foreign spies made St. Patrick's Cathedral a rendezvous during the war period.

Maj. Yardley says the "black chamber" died suddenly and swiftly in 1929, when a new secretary of state took office. This secretary of state, he writes, held that it was unethical for this country to seek the secrets transmitted in foreign diplomatic messages.

'AMERICAN DIPLOMACY EASY ON BRAIN, BUT HELL ON FEET'

Washington, June 2.—The United States Ambassador to the Court of St. Jame's today summarized his opinion of American diplomacy as "easy on the brain but hell on the feet". Pushing his hat back on his head, Ambassador Dawes sat down on a convenient State Department table and put at end rumors he would resign from his post. He arrived today and is a guest at the White House.

He will remain until Thursday, returning then to Chicago in connection with the World's Fair, and will sail for England on the Idle de France June 24.

IN MEMORIUM

In memory of P. E. Jones, who died June 7, 1930:

Oh, what would I give to clasp his hand
His dear, kind face to see:
To hear his voice, to see his smile
That meant so much to me.
I o ften sit and think of him
When I am all alone
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own
Sadly missed by his wife.

MISSOURI GAME BIRD SITUATION IS SUBJECT OF INTENSIVE STUDY

The game bird situation in Missouri is given much consideration in the Game Survey of the North Central States, a book recently prepared by Aldo Leopold. Advance copies of the book have been received by the State Game and Fish Department.

The status of quail, pheasants, rabbits, wild turkey, prairie chicken, deer and waterfowl in Missouri is given in the book. An outstanding feature of especial interest to Missourians is the record furnished by Phil M. Smith of Callaway County showing the effects of agricultural improvement on the quail supply on his farm. Intensification of farming reduced the quail covies one-half between 1923 to 1929. An imaginary reconstruction of quail covies on the Smith farm also is shown on the maps published.

The book has been made available for general distribution through the American Game Protective Association at Washington, D. C.

Several hundred eggs of birds native to Missouri from the collection of Earl S. Crafton of Plattsburg, Mo., have been added recently to the bird exhibit in the Missouri Resources Museum at the State Capitol, according to Ernst Schwarz, department taxidermist and exhibitor. The collection was procured through Mrs. Grace C. Bland of Plattsburg, a sister of the collector.

More than forty different species of birds are represented in the collection. They were collected largely between 1890 and 1900 and all records were carefully preserved. Some of the eggs in the collection are from species generally considered not common to Missouri now. These eggs are being exhibited in the bird case and will be known as the Earl S. Crafton Collection. Duplicate nesting from the collection have been given to the University of Missouri and the Children's Museum at St. Joseph.

Connty Clerk's Annual Report Shows Favorable Balance All Departments

Taxpayers in Scott County who ask now and then "where does the money go", will find their question answered in this issue of The Standard—insofar as expenditures and receipts for the County are concerned up to March 1, 1931.

The annual financial statement prepared in the office of J. Sherwood Smith, County Clerk, is carried in this issue beginning on page two. Every department in the County is required by law to keep an accurate record of receipts and expenditures, and such report is then published annually in a paper selected by the County Court.

Sikeston Drum and Bugle Corps To Attend District Legion Convention In Bluff

Poplar Bluff, June 3.—Legionnaires from all over Southern Missouri are planning to attend the 14th District American Legion Convention to be held here Sunday, June 21.

A special Frisco train, to be known as "The Legionnaire" will bring delegates from Chaffee, Cape Girardeau and their surrounding territories to Poplar Bluff, arriving here at 11 o'clock convention morning. The crew will be composed of Legion men. Leaving Chaffee, the train will make Cape and will stop at all intermediate points, picking up ex-service men, their wives and sweethearts. This one train alone is expected to bring between 300 and 400 visitors to Poplar Bluff.

Cape Girardeau will send its drum and bugle corps and clown band. The 140th Infantry band will be brought here under the auspices of the Legion and the Chamber of Commerce and business men of Chaffee. The Sikeston Drum and Bugle Corps will also be on hand as will several other similar organizations.

Not only will the convention here draw Legionnaires from the 14th District, but the 13th District will also contribute its share. Reservations have already been made from Illmo, Fornfelt, Commerce, Hamburg, Benton and other towns.

The Legion Auxiliary will be in session here, simultaneously with the Legionnaires. Probably 200 women from various towns in the 14th District are planning on meeting here. A special convention hall will be arranged for them.

Brown-Mabry Post of the American Legion, who will be hosts to their comrades of the district here, are making elaborate entertainment plans. At a meeting last night, committees in charge of detail work reported. The local men are expecting in the neighborhood of 1000 visitors.

A program for convention day is being drawn up and will be announced later. It will probably include a baseball game, boxing macthes and a parade, among other features.

NEW HIGHWAY 60 PAVING OPENS SOON

According to the weekly highway report issued by the Division 10 office here, new concrete pavement on U. S. Route 60 between Dexter and Dudley will be opened June 6 thereby eliminating the detour.

All roads in this division are in good condition, the report concludes.

The department reported, however, that another detour would be established between Essex and Gray Ridge about June 10, at which time contractors will start paving operations. It is impossible to tell just when this will be completed. The new project is 5.5 miles in length.

Highway 67 between Silvia and Coldwater, where construction work for several months has blocked traffic between Bluff and St. Louis, will be opened August 1, it was announced. That is a tentative date, however.

The management of The Standard appreciates the loyal support of its assistants in all departments during the rather lengthy hours and days necessary to issue our June 2 progress edition. While we realize that we have established no record of any kind, it is a fact that with one linotype and a four-page press, it was a huge task to meet regular twice-a-week editions, and still produce a decent looking issue of forty-four pages.

FRISCO GRADE CROSSING IN SCOTT COUNTY ASKED

Jefferson City, June 3.—The State Highway Commission today asked the Public Service Commission for an order requiring the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company to join with it in elimination of a grade crossing at the intersection of Highway No. 55 with the Frisco tracks in Scott County.

The Highway Commission declares traffic conditions are such that public safety will be assured only by construction of a viaduct to carry the highway over the railroad tracks. The viaduct will cost $40,944 and an order requiring the railway company to pay the cost of constructing the viaduct and approaches is asked.

PLUNGES OFF HIGH BRIDGE SPAN, LIVES

Cape Girardeau, June 1.—Thadeus McGuighan, 29 years old, formerly of York, Pa., who has been living in Cape Girardeau for two months, was recovering today at the St. Francis Hospital from shock suffered late Sunday afternoon when he leaped from the traffic bridge into the Mississippi River.

Plunging from the highest point on the span, McGuighan hurtled downward 65 feet, landing on his back in the water. Although stunned momentarily he regained sufficiently to swim to the Missouri bank about 200 yeards south of the bridge where he was pulled from the water exhausted.

"I am tired of it and just wanted to end it all", he is reported to have told rescuers who pulled him from the water and carried him to an ambulance in which he was taken to the hospital. Later he denied to hospital attendants that he attempetd to take his life and declared that he "only jumped off the bridge for fun".

McGuighan told C. E. Kennamer, 321 South Lorimier street, one of those present after he was dragged from the river, that he was tired of living and jumped in the river to end his troubles, Kennamer said.

HODGE DECKER SUICIDE ATTEMPT SUNDAY NIGHT IN BARBER SHOP FAILS

A suicide attempt on the part of Hodge Decker, barber, last Sunday night or early Monday morning, failed when Decker's nerves failed him. He had succeeded in slashing one arm in three places with a razor, but evidently reconsidered his rashness and successfully stopped the blood flow with anticeptic astringent powder.

Officer Gid Daniels and Toots Nall reported the incident Monday morning about 2:30 o'clock, while visiting The Standard office, while workmen were placing the finishing touches to the June 2 Progress Edition. The two officers were first concerned with finding the source of smoke noticed by Nall. They found workmen at the Malone theatre burning accumulated rubbish in the lot back of the Decker Shop on South New Madrid street. While there, they noticed that the back door of the barber shop stood open, so they entered to investigate. They found ample evidence of a suicide attempt.

Decker, however, had been taken home earlier that night. He was found in bed at his rooming place in a Front Street apartment. He has subsequently been removed to the Emergency Hospital, where his condition today was reported satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Matthews and sons are spending a few days in St. Louis.

The Co-Workers of the Methodist church served dinner to the 150 delegates at the church Wednesday, who are attending the Missionary meeting of the St. Louis Distrinct.

Five Hurt As New Auto Is Hit By Potashnick Truck Near The Cape

Cape Girardeau, June 3.—Five persons were injured, two seriously, Tuesday night when a new automobile in which they were driving along the Highway 61 loop west of the city limits was struck from the rear by a motor truck of the Potashnick Motor Truck Lines of Sikeston and was catapulated into a ditch partly filled with water.

Cleve Crites of Jackson ,member of the firm, Crites and Kern Motor Co., 41 South Main Street, was the worst injured, suffering a fractured rib, wrenched back and sprained right ankle. He was removed to the St. Francis Hospital and X-ray examinations were being made today to determine the exact extent of his injuries.

Others injured were: Mrs. G. C. Gockel, 108 South Spanish street, who suffered a wrenched back and cuts and bruises about the forehead and body; Mrs. Robert Fenton, 108 South Spanish street, who received cuts on her forehead, bruised left side and severe lacerations and bruises on both legs; Geraldine Gockel, 14, 108 South Spanish street, who suffered a broken collar bone and cuts and bruises; Leon Gockel, driver of the car, who suffered a laceration of his hip and bruises about the body.

They were occupants of a new Studebaker special sedan, which had been sold by the motor company to Garnet Hahn of Lutesville and was to be delivered today. The speedometer of the car at the time of the wreck showed that it had been driven only five miles. The car had been taken out for a drive around the loop to limber it up preparatory to its delivery.

Frank Broshears, driver of the truck, was not injured. The truck suffering only a bent front bumper and loss of one of the headlamps in the crash. The Studebaker, valued at $1195, was a total loss.

At the hospital Crites told a Missourian reporter that his party was driving north along the highway at about 20 miles an hour, being struck by the truck before being aware of its presence. The Studebaker was tossed from the highway about 100 yards south of the intersection with the Gordonville road. The embankment over which it plunged, end over end three times, is about 15 feet high. The car landed on its top in the water and the occupants were forced to crawl out through the doors.

Force of the impact of the truck against the car caved in the rear end and smashed the body, and also tore the rear and front seats loose. The steering wheel was broken and the front end of the car was partly buried in the mud and water. Strangely enough only the rear glass and that in the left front door was broken.

Broshears in making out a report of the wreck for Gene Potashnick, his employer, stated that he was driving 25 miles an hour when he hit the car. He said the Studebaker was parked on the pavement.

Occupants of the car, however, denied this. Just before the crash Crites said he heard one of the women in the rear seat remark that the car behind them had "mighty bright lights".

Potashnick, over the telephone, said the truck, a Reo speed wagon, was controlled to a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour by an automatic governor. He also said his trucks were heavily bonded and insured for protection against accidents.

Potashnick came to Cape Girardeau as soon as he was informed of the accident and gave what assistance he could to those injured and launched an investigation of the accident. Broshears continued on to St. Louis after the wreck victims had been cared for. He was enroute to St. Louis with a load of hogs at the time.—Cape Missourian.

STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES IS SHORT LIVED AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE BUILDING SITE

A minor labor disturbance at the local Federal Postoffice building site Wednesday morning was promptly met with checks in full and a discharge for the two labor agitators and a small increase in hour wages for the rest of the workmen.

The men staged no demonstration. They merely refused to work Wednesday morning and notified Hiram Lloyd, Jr., to that effect through one spokesman. Their demands for thirty-five cents an hour for common labor was granted, but the alleged ring leaders in the trouble were discharged immediately. The rest returned to work.

In some manner or other, the rumor gained ground that Mayor N. E. Fuchs, "had established a wage scale locally of twenty-five cents an hour". This report was denied by Mayor Fuchs Thursday morning who produced copies of letters to major building contractors and bidders on the project outlining a local scale of "35 cents an hour for common labor, and 65 cents for skilled labor". Copies of letters to that effect are on file in the offices of the Hiram Lloyd Construction Co., and in the files of Mayor Fuchs.

Mr. Lloyd regretted the matter exceedingly Thursday mroning, saying that he attempted to meet the current wage scale in effect by other contractors in the city. He found that to be 25c, he stated, and added that he had no intention of trying to "beat down" the price of honest labor.

Work on the Federal building is going forward rapidly. Steel workers Thursday afternoon finished placing reinforcing and temperature rods for the first floor. Conduit has been placed in the forms also, and it is planned to pour concrete for this floor level beginning Friday morning if weather permits. All steel beams, plumbing, electrical work and forms have been set thus far.

Special precautions to assure a waterproof basement have been specified in the plans. The work includes a double coat of tar and pitch and two outside coats of cement.

Decorative Indiana limestone pieces and the cornerstone were unloaded this week, and carried to the building site. A carload of face brick is expected daily so that work may continue without interruption.

CAN MAN RULE OWN HOME TO BE DECIDED

When L. B. Herring, 50, grabbed the family shotgun in self defense against attacks of his son, Lucian Herring and son-in-law, Luther Jines last Tuesday, he did not not realize that his action would be followed by court proceedings. Wednesday he faced charges of felonious assault and was carted off to the Scott County jail in custody of Tom Scott, Sheriff.

Herring's story to Judge Myers reveals that he attempted to settle a family row between his in-laws and son Tuesday morning. The affair resulted in a free-for-all fight and he, in self-defense, stood off the charges of his son and son-in-law with a shot gun. That ended the fight.

His son, however, filed papers charging felonious assault, and the father countered with charges of assault and battery and disturbing the peace. Young Herring pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1 and costs. Jines decided to stand trial on the charges and will be heard June 8 before Judge Myers.

The elder Herring will stand preliminary trial some time this week to decide, incidently, whether the nominal "head of the house" has authority in his own home.

TWO SIKESTON GIRLS MAKE HIT VISITING ACADEMY

Lexington, June 2.—Among the very popular visitors at the Wentworth Military Academy commencement here during the past week were Misses Nannabelle Wilson and Elizabeth Bowman of Sikeston, who were guests of Capt. and Mrs. Robert O. Rollison of the Academy faculty. Miss Bowman is a niece and Miss Wilson a cousin of Capt. and Mrs. Rollison.

The young ladies were guests of honor at several social affairs, including two bridge parties, a theatre party, and a dinner. Both attended the final commencement ball at Wentworth, and Miss Bowman, with Cadet Major Harry Appleton of Chicago led the grand march.

In company with R. A. McCord, Jno. A. Matthews and Al Daley, the editor took a swing around the circle Wednesday afternoon to see how the crops looked south and southwest of Sikeston. We drove south to the Kewanee lane, then west to the road leading south to Lilbourn. The bottom, or black land, to the west of Kewanee never looked better. Corn was up to a good stand and the fields were clean. Some of the corn looked to be knee high and all of good color. Oat and wheat more than waist high and very fine. Just after turning south off the Kewanee road, we stopped at a field where a man was cutting a mixed crop of hay that was very rank and estimated to make two and a half tons to the acre. The mixture was red clover, timothy and volunteer wheat. The mule team had to rest after each round as the growth was so heavy. Through this section is some of the best land in the world. The next stop was at the R. A. McCord farm near Lilbourn. No grain is grown on this farm. Nothing but pasture land and hay crops. A 30-acre field of Kobe Lespedeza was a sight to the uninitiated. It was as thick as the hair on a dog's back and reminded one of walking on a htick Brussels carpet. At this time the Lespedeza was but four inches tall, but makes a growth to fourteen inches and is self-seeding. Mr. McCord expects to cut two and a half tons to the acre from this field, then turn sheep on it. The hay is more relished by stock than either alfalfa or pea hay, and brings a higher price on the market. This is a sheep ranch and at this time McCord has upwards of 260 head that are thriving on pasture. Recently he topped the market with a batch of lambs that weighed 75 pounds. He has plenty of barn and shed room to place his hay for the sheep in bad weather and they require very little attention. This was a delightful three-hour drive.

The publisher wishes to express his appreciation of the close co-operation given by the office force while producing the Tuesday issue of The Standard. Each of them put in long hours and all worked together, else the paper could not have been issued on time. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Pleas Malcolm and A. L. Wallhausen secured the advertising, Wallhausen made the dummy, secured cuts and prepared copy, O. E. Latham, W. B. Lankford, and Earl Ward s et and distributed the ads. Ward did all the press work, Billie Gardner and A. B. Moll cast the cuts for ads, Miss Hyacinth Sheppard set all the type for the paper, while the editor got a little copy, made up the forms, looked after the press work and was generally in the way. Our office assistants have always been ready and willing to come early and stay late to help in a pinch, knowing the success of the sheet meant their checks would be good. We are thankful to have such loyal assistants.

Word has come to The Standard office of complaints of final bills rendered by the Missouri Utilities Co. of being too high—higher than ever before. The Standard has not been asked to say a word for the Utilities Co., but in fairness to them and to put those who complain right, will say: Bills being presented recently were taken from the sealed meters as left by the Municipal Light Co. and were the final readings. The Utilities Co. read meters about the 15th of each month and bills are rendered on the first. The final bills included the piece of the month after the reading on May 15 along with the reading from April 15 to May 15, which adds almost half a month more than on previous months. The manager, nor the assistants, could not force the reading of the sealed meters, and besides, they are not that sort of folks. We trust this will be received in good part by all concerned and will explain things to late consumers of the Missouri Utilities Co. juice.

The publisher and entire force of The Standard appreciates the compliments paid us for the big paper issued the first of the week. The advertisements for forty of the pages and the press work thereon were accomplished by the force from Friday morning until 4:00 o'clock of the morning of publication. The editor handset the heads and made up the forms of the entire edition, besides getting a portion of the copy and doing "strong talk" for the force, which was not bad far an 68-year-old boy.

AUNT JANE SPEAKS HER MIND

In this day of multiple divorce and allegations many are expressing their views on marriage. Perhaps I can make no contribution of value, but I am tempted to try.

No successful marriage just happens. Marriage, like a house, must be built from the foundation up. When a couple decides to build a house they must know how much they can put into it and what kind of a house they want. After much discussion and compromsie the final plans are taken to a architect or carpenter.

If we could have "blue prints" to build marriage, and keep them constantly before us, we might build better. A house thrown together in a haphazard and slip-shod fashion cannot successfully weather the storms.

The best arranged and most carefully planned house has some defects. We find we overlooked some important details. If we were building again we would do this and that. Do we walk away from a house because it is not absolutely perfect? We do not; we have too much invested. We try to repair it and improve it, and we stay with it.

It takes more than money to build a house; it takes thought and careful planning. No house is built on desire; it requires lumber and nails and tools. No fairy waves a wand and brings a house out of the ether. Somebody must dig and sweat.

In marriage we are our own architects and carpenters. No amount of money can hire a substitute. Each party has definite duties and obligations and no weakling can hope to succeed. A lazy careless person can't build much of a house. So it is with marriage. Anybody can get married, but it takes real men and women to build together.

Every couple should be carefully questioned by the recorder to make sure they have duly considered the step they are taking. But no, each marriage license means a few dollars added to the country's funds, and each divorce means money to the courts and lawyers.

We have commercialized the greatest institution in the world. No wonder we have so many disasters.

—AUNT JANE.

Recently we published a story about Ben F. "Marshall's" unsuccessful attempt to imitate the Prince of Wales' favorite stunt ahorse. Ben F. was pitched headlong over an automobile.

Now it develops that it was Ben F. Carroll instead of Marshall, and we are left with apologies to make. To the Horse, To Carroll and To Marshall.

We notice where a Kansas City linotype operator committed suicide, leaving a note to his mother, saying he believed he was on the verge of insanity.

We believe he was. In the first place, the guy who invented the overgrown, metal-eating typewriter went nuts making it.

And also the K. C. lad was on the verge of nothing at all. He musta been more or less crazy ever to begin learning to be an op.

FOREST GIANTS MEASURED WITHOUT LOFTY CLIMB

Washington, June 2.—The National Park Service has measured the forest giants in Yosemite, but it didn't climb them to obtain the height.

It used a triangulation method for the heights and a tape for the horzontal distances.

It found the tallest tree in Yosemite was 300 feet high and the tallest in Mariposa Grove 293 feet. The grizzly giant in Mariposa Grove, the third largest, was 93 feet in circumference.

The Park Service said the largest tree in Merced Grove began its life as a seedling on the edge of Moss Creek and during the thousand or so years of its life had grown over the center of the stream.

Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee An Earthquake Formation

Special Permission To The Standard by the Memphis Commercial Appeal

By Mrs. J. L. Haguewood

Rutherford, Tenn., June 2.—"Near the mighty Father of Waters in the Western Tennessee country, on the banks of a little streamlet young Reelfoot built his village. Near to Bayou DeChein like light of stars of evening were two small lakes, the Upper and Lower Blue Hole, gleams of golden glory, the sun cast on their waters. Down to the water's edge came weasel, mink and red deer, the bobcat, bear and otter, and every kind of fowl, and so it was the Blue Hole became so very famous . . . . Each year the "great white hunter" would come to Reelfoot's village and thus was born a friendship 'twixt Reelfoot and the "pale face".

This Indian legend, rich in the lore of West Tennessee, recalls the days when this broad expanse of empire was people only by the Red Man. He had his trails and he knew the forest intimately. The white man had only the trails, one, the Massac Trace, which entered the State, south of Somerville, and passed in a northwesterly direction.

Another, the United States road, which entered the State near Waverly and which ran due west, over which came the early settlers that ventured into the new country.

When the treaties with the Cherokees in 1806-07 relinquished for the State 335,000 acres for settlement, the pioneering spirit led a few westward. We have reason to believe that the great white hunter was Davy Crockett, for we have record that he experienced the great earthquake of 1811-12.

He may have followed the Massac Trace, which had been made before any settlement in West Tennessee. Or he may have come over the United States road, which was made for carrying supplies to the Indians. Or he may have plunged directly into the wilderness, scorning the blazed trails, and with the sun only for a guide, blazed a new trail and, from his own account, reached the Obion River, and there fixed the site for his new home.

We have followed him through the succeeding months, 150 miles from his family, exploring the wilderness, establishing a home to which he might bring his people. We have followed him through the hardships he encountered, the escapes from death in his adventures. All this was to the liking of Davy Crockett, who saw in the new country, with the abundant game it held, a hunter's paradise.

When he had settled, and having a supply of ammunition, he set out for a long hunt to satisfy the pioneering spirit within him and to tread where no white man had been before. Great expectations of many discoveries led him on. Although the weather was bitterly cold, and it was sleeting, that was of no concern. He could make his camp as comfortable as his cabin.

He carried his two good dogs, and his horses and his son. His way led him westward into the section between the Obion River and Reelfoot Lake. Many a bear was killed. Many a thrilling encounter with wild beasts was experienced. After hunting arduously for days, most individuals would have been satisfied and would have sought rest. But not Davy Crockett. Instead, he pressed onward.

The woods now became rough and hilly, and the fallen timbers and the cracks in the earth made by the earthquake of the year before were a source of danger, and he was forced to crawl for long distances to avoid falling and breaking his gun. For miles he picked his way along in this manner, with the dogs following, running ahead, often treeing some animal. Once he was lost from all of them. Distantly he could hear them baying, but he could not reach them.

In the attempt, he had come upon an unknown stream of water. He plunged into the icy current and waded across, but now his difficulties began. He found himself part way up a steep hill and getting farther away from his dogs.

After groping along in the darkness trying to find his bearings he at last reached the place where a large bear was treed by the dogs. The son and his horses were left far behind. From experience the son knew he should strike camp and wait for his father. Meanwhile, the bear was brought to the ground by a shot from the hunter and a fierce fight with the dogs ensued.

Alternately the scrambling mass of bear and dogs fell into and crawled out of a deep fissure which had been made by the earthquake. Finally, Davy Crockett crawled into the fissure, underneath the bear, and feeling along his shaggy side, found the right place and plunged his knife into his heart.

Crocket sought to build a fire. The leather breeches, wet in crossing the stream, were now frozen stiff. He was so tired from the activities of the day that he was unable to keep warm from the further exercise. He was unable to kindle a fire. The materials were wet and the wood green and the weak flame served only to aggravate the more.

He was growing numb and he realized something must be done. He resorted to the expedient of climbing a small tree and as quickly coasting down the trunk, all through the night. The heavy friction caused from sliding down the tree, kept the spark of life in his body until morning, when his son found him and carried him to camp.

Crockett was so exhausted he felt that he could sleep a week. He stretched himself out on a bear skin before the camp fire where his son fed him warm food and drink. All the day was passed in camp. When night came, the fires were built up, the warm skins made ready for sleeping, with the dogs at rest nearby.

They had settled down for the night, after heaping fresh fuel upon the fire and were sleeping soundly when suddenly they were awakened by the earth swaying and rocking violently beneath them. For a moment they were dazed.

But with the earth swaying beneath them and trees crackling and with great fissues in the earth opened before they eyes, they were soon awakened to the fact that they were in a cataclysm of nature. The frightened dogs set up a howling which only intensified the terror.

The rustle of fleeing animals and cries of beasts, mingled with the rumbling noises formed an experience terrifying.

After awhile the violence subsided and they settled down around the campfire to exchange impressions of the phenomenon and when drowsiness came, passed the remainder of the night undisturbed.

History tells us this was on January 23, 1812.

Tradition tells us 'while on an expedition into the southern country, young Reelfoot went to Natchez, where dwelt a veteran war chief. His only daughter, Starlight, was dark-eyed, tall and slender and Reelfoot wooed the maiden, who smiled with joy upon him; then he appealed to the old chief

"Give me the lovely princess to cheer my life and wigwam'. Straightway the old chief answered, refused in voice of thunder, which sent the lover away.

"When shades of evening enveloped all the landscape, young Reelfoot seized the maiden and journeyed to his people. To Tennessee he bore her and by the Blue Hole Water the lovely dark-eyed princess brought gladness to his wigwam and sunshine to his people.

"The summer quickly sped. Autumn winds were blowing, a change, a mighty blight came over Reelfoot's country! The fish refused to live in the waters of the Blue Hole; the bobcat, deer and panther all fled from out the bottoms. The wrath of the Great Spirit descended full upon them, because of Reelfoot's action".

When morning came and daylight revealed the havoc wrought by the earthquake, Davy Crockett determined to go nearer to the scene of the disaster. They broke camp and set out in a westerly direction. Nearer and nearer they came to the lake region. The countryside now held untold allure for them. All about lay many great mounds of sand thrown up from the fissures newly opened in the earth. Many a tree had been wrecked, its branches torn and twisted, with the trunks broken off.

Exploring to his heart's content, taking minute cognizance of the vast changes which were revealed in nature, Davy Crockett finally reached the high bluff overlooking the lake and there from its brow, where perchance young Reelfoot had in days before looked out across his village, saw instead the vast expanse of water, miles and miles to the right and left of him, filled with broken trunks of cypress, and broad expanse of blue depths. Beheld, instead of Upper and Lower Blue Holes with the Indian village around them, the treacherous expanse of "Reelfoot", the grave of these vanquished Americans.

HIGHWAY BUILDINGS HERE COMBINE UTILITY AND BEAUTY

Plans now on file with the Division 10 engineer's office here call for modern, fireproof and well-arranged buildings to complete the Highway group at the intersection of Highways 60 and 61 in the East section of the city. The two proposed structures of stone and brick will serve as Division 10 office and garage headquarters.

The office structure, a two-story and basement building, will be 52x42 fet. The basement will contain a materials testing laboratory and storage rooms. First floor plans call for general offices, four private offices, while the second floor will accommodate the drafting department, right-of-way and surveys and plans department.

Travelers on Highway 61 will find the office structure on the northeast corner of the lot. Immediately back of this building will be located the garage buldniig. The latter was the first of the group of three to be constructed. It was completed this spring, and has been used for the past several months by that department.

The garage structure is to be a one-story affair with a small boiler room basement. The dimensions are 66x134 feet, constructed of red matt face brick and hollow tile interior. Carthage stone or Indana limiestone will be used extensively on the main office structure.

Bids for the construction of both buildings will be opened by the Missouri State Highway Commission at Jefferson City, June 15.

How One Woman Lost 102 Lbs. of Fat

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa., October 31, 1930.

Lions Vote To Sponsor Play Ground, Co-Operating With Legion, C. of C. And School

The Sikeston Lions Club last Wednesday voted to assist in defraying part of the expense incident to establishing a Sikeston Public Playground each week-day morning under the direction of W. B. Miller. Cooperating financially are the American Legion, Chamber of Commerce, the School Board and Sikeston Lions Club.

While plans as to age groups, schedules, games, etc., are still immature, Mr. Miller intends to begin active work next Monday morning, June 8, using the grade school lot.

For years the movement to establish a local playground, under the supervision of a paid director, has received attention, but until this spring the matter was merely passivly treated.

This spring and early summer the proposal was again brought up. Clint H. Denman, Lions Club member, boosted the project materially and is in large measure responsible for getting it underwritten finacially by the Lions Club and other organizations mentioned.

The idea uppermost in the minds of promoters is of course keeping children occupied in healthful, clean play instead of loafing on the streets and getting into mischief.

A full schedule of games, and play projects, hikes, swimming parties and the like will be released from time to time by Mr. Miller. The playground will be open for two months.

You can see as well as hear at Weeks' Theatre. Visit us.

RITCHIE URGES STATE CONTROL OF LIQUOR TO RELIEVE TAX BURDEN

French Lick, Ind., June 2.—"You cannot have from 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 people wanting work and unable to get it without knowing that this constitutes a challenge to our social order, and that it is the strongest argument for communism unless it is solved", declared Gov. Albert C. Ritch of Maryland, in presiding at the annual conference of Governors this afternoon.

Referring to prohibition, the Maryland executive said that if this question is turned back to the States, a system of excise taxes may again be built up which might do away altogether with federal income taxes and at "one stroke relieve capital, labor and agriculture from the tax burdens which rest so heavily upon them".

Today's sessions of the conference were crowded with speeches, including gubernatorial shop talk, the warning of Governor Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania against "the domination of public utilities in political life", and the paper by Gov. Frank D. Roosevelt of New York on land utilization.

"The power of public utilities", Gov. Pinchot asserted, "is manifest in every political assembly from Congress to town meeting. He added that "interstate commerce in electric current is still outside either federal or State control".

Gov. Roosevelt said he could not take a "Pollyanna" attitude toward present day economic problems. "It is not enough to talk about being of good cheer", he said. "A new economic and social balance calls for positive leadership and definite experiments which have not hitherto been tried".

The New York Governor suggested diversification of industrial life by sending a fair proportion of it into the rural districts as one of the definite possibilities of the future. Cheap electric power, good roads and automobiles make such a rural development feasible, he said.

"There are many industries which can succeed just as well, if not better", Gov. Roosevelt said, "by bringing them to rural communities and at the same time these rural communities will be given higher annual income capacity".

Gov. Ritchie's remarks came as a surprise to the score of State executives attending the conference. The Marylander said that if he were to offer any criticism of the annual conferences it would be that "we strive too hard to keep controversial subjects out of our discussions".

"The States are the governmental laboratories of the nation", said Ritchie. "They are the agencies for political trial and experiment. Yet we, the representatives of the States, refrain from debating those questions which are the realities of our national life.

"For instance, if any one thing is clear, it is that our people are becoming tired of the old conjure words in American politics, and are concerned instead about getting or keeping their jobs".

SEVEN MORE CHARGES AGAINST GOV. HORTON

Nashville, Tenn., June 2.—Blame for the depositing of millions of State funds in the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary of Caldwell & Co., investment banking house both of which are now defunct, was placed on Gov. Henry H. Horton in one of seven additional articles of impeachment against him which were reported to the Tennessee House of Representatives today.

It was charged that on August 14, 1930, the Governor called the State Funding Board into session and that some member of it, in the Governor's presence and with his knowledge and participation directed preparation of a resolution that "undertook" to make the "so-called" Bank of Tennessee the depository of all State bridge funds.

More than $3,000,000 of bridge funds was on deposit when the bank failed last November.

The first article of impeachment, reported to the House by its committee last week, charged Governor Horton conspired with Rogers Caldwell, financier, and Col. Luke Lea, newspaper publisher and politician, to influence governmental affairs for their personal gain in exchange for their political support. Caldwell was president of Caldwell & Co., and the Bank of Tennessee.

CHAFFEE BOY BREAKS NECK IN DIVE, BUT IS EXPECTED TO SURVIVE

Chaffee, June 2.—Louis Gilmer, 14, Chaffee school boy, is recovering from a fracture of the neck, which, it has since been learned, he sustained Friday afternoon while swimming in Diversion Channel on Highway 25 between here and Dutchtown. Louis dived into the water and struck a hidden obstruction, thought to have been a bar of mud.

The lad, a good swimmer, got out of the stream himself, and did not feel especially bad at the time. He went home soon, however, nad an X-ray picture made later revealed a piece of bone was chipped from the left side of a vertebra near the base of his skull.

Louis is allowed to sit up, and attending physicians believe danger of paralysis has passed. Some stiffness may result, it is thought, due to the fracture.

At the time of the accident a number of Chaffee boys were at the swimming place. Louis is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gilmer.

FARMER CRANKS CAR IN GEAR: RESULT—ONE WRECKED OIL STATION

When Dick Nelson, farmer living north of town, drove into the Kingshighway Cities Service Station Wednesday morning, his intentions were honorable. He carried a grudge against no man in particular. When he left he had created a considerable uproar, damaged his car slightly, and partialy at least wrecked the station.

Nelson cranked his car after oil and gas had been added and the bill squared. The machine started suddenly and crashed into the lattice fence, and sheared off a 20-foot 3-inch iron post which supported one of the station's flood lights.

The car hood was dented, the pole sheared off and one section of fence wrecked in the process. Nelson jumped aside and escaped injury.

Broadcasting Will Aid World Harmony

A future in which races throughout the world will use English as a secondary language is envisaged by General James G. Harbord, who was Chief of Staff of the A. E. F. and now is President of the Radio Corporation of America, writing on radio as an instrument for promoting international understanding and peace.

Since the greater and most appealing part of the world's broadcast entertainment is offered in English from America and the British Isles, radio has provided the strongest incentive in history for many races to master a common tongue, General Harbord points o t.

"We must not forget," he says, "that the nations' confusion of tongues has in itself been one of the most fruitful sources of international division and misunderstanding. People distrust what they do not understand; let them develop a common medium of communication and still another cause of distrust will fall by the wayside of human progress."

Radio and its allied science, television, will prove as valuable and perhaps more valuable than all diplomatic conferences in assuring universal peace for the future, General Harbord believes.

PHOTORADIO MAKES STRIKING ADVANCE

Photoradio has made such strides recently that it promises more than ever to fulfill some day the forecast of Owen D. Young at a dinner given in 1923 to General James G. Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation, that it eventually will make it possible to flash whole pages of newspapers across the ocean.

The most recent developments are the simplification of photoradio apparatus, greater speed and the reduction in rates between New York and London which just has been announced by W. A. Winterbottom, Vice-President in charge of communications of R. C. A. Communications, Inc. The reduction was made possible by the simplification and the greater speed. The new rate is figured in centimeters, but is approximately $2 a square inch. The old rate was $3.20 a square inch.

The "heart" of a high speed facsimile transmitter

The accompanying cut shows the group of lights, called the "doughnut light," which center illumination on a point on the picture or printed matter placed on a roller across from them. This light beam is reflected from the picture or printed matter into the photocell box behind the lights. The "doughnut" is on a carriage which moves across and back in front of the roller. After every trip the carriage makes from one side to the other, the roller turns ever so slightly.

As the spot of light from the "doughnut" passes back and forth the lightness and darkness of the points it touches change the intensity of the reflected beam. The reflected beam produces electrical impulses, which are amplified, sent by radio to a receiver hundreds of miles away and changed by the receiver to electrical impulses again. These electrical impulses cause a neon light to glow at intervals timed perfectly with the beam of light reflected from the picture on the transmitter. The glow of the neon light is reproduced on photographic paper, placed in the same position on a roller on the receiver that the original is in on the transmitter. Thus an exact duplicate of the original is made.

COWS GIVE MORE MILK BY RADIO

The first test under practical dairying conditions of providing radio music for cows has proved a big success, according to officials of the Detroit Creamery Company, near Mount Clemens, Mich. The creamery company officials bought RCA loudspeakers for each of their barns when they noticed the cows liked the music from a Radiola receiving set installed to entertain the men doing the milking. Now all the 900 cows on the model farm enjoy radio programs.

THE INDIVIDUAL AND HIS BANK

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

BANKERS recognize that their business carries especially heavy public responsibilities and welcome all sound measures to aid them meet the duties this imposes. Unceasing efforts to bring about continually improving methods to safeguard depositors in banks of all kinds have long been uppermost in the plans of bankers' organizations throughout the nation. They are not the outgrowth merely of the past year of business adversity, but have been carried on actively for many years and have resulted in great progress along lines of better, safer banking methods. Although banking along with all business has suffered reverses, conditions in this field have been far less severe than they would have been had not bankers been widely successful in their endeavors to develop the high standards of banking that now generally prevail.

R. C. STEPHENSON

The American Bankers Association and bankers' organizations in every state actively support the principle of government supervision of banking. The national banks, which receive their charters to do business from the federal government, are under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington. Through his efficient staffs of expert bank examiners in every section he has the duty and powers to keep watch of the way every national bank is being conducted, to suggest desirable changes in its policies or methods and even to step in and take control for the protection of the depositors if such action is warranted. The state banks, also, which are chartered by the various state governments, are subject to similar supervision and control by state bank officials. In addition banks in many places have long maintained voluntary clearing house associations which enforce even closer supervision over their members.

Bankers Favor Public Supervision

Present laws adequately enforced contain ample provisions for government supervision. Bankers universally believe in strong, capable banking departments manned by officials with the discretion and courage to enforce these laws and act under them as the common welfare demands. They believe that these public officials should be paid sufficient salaries to command the services of men of character, ability and a resolute spirit of public service. They believe also that the banking departments should be kept free from all political or other special influence in order to be able to act at all times with single-minded independence solely for the benefit of the public interest.

Although banks in the United States operating under state or national charters are thus subject to supervision of public authority, they are strictly private business enterprises. They are owned by their stockholders and administered by officials chosen through the boards of directors which their stockholders elect. No bank is owned or operated by the United States Government, nor, with one small exception in a western state, by any state government. The function of government in banking is to promote and enforce careful banking administration through the system of examination and supervision which I have described. This, however, does not relieve the individual depositor from the necessity of judging and choosing carefully as to his banking relations, just as in his other business or professional relations. He must inquire for himself into the character and type of institution and men he shall do business with, satisfying himself as to their reputation, reliability and capability. These qualities are essential to complete the element of safety and dependability in any human institution.

An Illusory Law

The bank deposit guaranty law in any form is a snare and a delusion, declares a banker in a state where it has been tried, adding: "It is a license and encouragement to irresponsible banks and banking and penalizes capital solvency and prudent banking. It creates a sense of security in the minds of the unthinking and uninformed that is false and impossible to be realized on ultimately. To compare it to legitimate insurance is without reason and absurd. It jeopardizes the solvency of all banks and the safety of all depositors for the theoretical safety of a few. Guaranty schemes always have been, are and always will be impotent, futile and disastrous. It is not new. Has been tried, failed and discarded at intervals for more than 100 years in this country. No well-informed, honest and intelligent mind can accept it in principle or practice. Competent bank supervision and restriction of banks to territory that will warrant sufficient capital investment and accounts is the only sane and honest course and will afford all the guaranty the depositing public is entitled to as compared with all other human affairs."

Little Journeys in Americana

By LESTER B. COLBY

Most Profitable Investment in History.

QUEEN ISABELLA, of Spain, hocking her royal earbobs to make possible the discovery of America has given the world a romantic story. But the actual cost of the expediton and the method by which it was financed reveals another picture.

Recent research has shown that the "overhead" of the entire voyage only amounted to about 36,000 pesetas which, reduced to good, hard United States coin, would be about $7,200! Or less than one per cent of what a modern pugilistic champion has been paid for socking an ambitious rival through ten rounds of rough house with pillowed mitts.

Martin and Vicente Pinzon, brothers, it now appears, did more than anyone else except, perhaps, Columbus himself, to organize the expedition. Their old account books, recently discovered, reveal the part they played in the affair and indicate that no member of the party would suffer much today in matters of income tax.

The Pinzons not only supplied two ships for the voyage, the Pinto and Nina, but captained them as well. Columbus, as commander of the expedition, was paid the equivalent of $300 and the two Pinzons got $180 each. Members of the crew got $2.50 a month, and the cost of food per man was fixed at $1.20 a month.

All of the guns on the three ships were invoiced at an equivalent of about $2,800 or approximately the cost of one loading for a modern heavy caliber gun. The entire pay roll of Columbus, for pilots and sailors, cooks and cabin boys, for the round trip, figures out about $3,660.

The purchasing power of money, of course, was far greater at that time. For a number of centuries very little new gold had been brought into Europe and silver was scarce. Gold wears out. For hundreds of years the gold supply of Europe had been dwindling. Much of it was lost because it has always been the custom to bury more or less gold with the dead in form of ornaments.

Shortage of gold had brought centuries of ever-increasing poverty to Europe, for only with a plentiful supply of money do prices for commodities advance. Paper banknotes were a later invention.

Prosperity returned to Europe as a result of Columbus' discovery of the New world. When the Spanish conquistadores discovered the lavish stores of gold and silver in the hands of the Indians of South and Central America and Mexico, they straightway grabbed it, loaded it into chests and shipped it home to Spain.

It is interesting to know that an expenditure of $7,200 invested in the first expedition of Columbus lifted all Europe out of a period of depression and despond that had persisted with increasing acuteness for centuries and gave it prosperity. It is probably safe to say that the money spent for the voyage of the Santa Maria, Nina and Pinto was the most profitable commercial investment in the history of the world.

The thing that amazes us today is the fact that this new-found discovery, the account books of the Pinzons, reveals the smallness of the financial investment. It is apparent that Queen Isabella's self-denial in donating the royal baubles was not great.

It is evident that what she gave was largely prestige much as Mrs. John J. Smith, wife of the village banker, might loan her name, along with donating a cake, to put over an Epworth league supper. But Isabella's gesture had rare value—for publicity purposes.

Why a Boy Breaks Off Right Arm of All Dolls

To that bench, or one near it, often comes a young woman with her little four-year-old son, whom she calls "Buddy."

The little boy invariably has a doll with him, though not always the same one. The girl has been puzzled because each of these dolls has its right arm missing. She took it for granted that, through some strange coincidence, a similar accident had happened to each of the dolls.

So, the other evening, when, in looking for something in the drawers of her wardrobe trunk, she ran across a cowboy doll that some one had given her, she at once thought of Buddy. The next day she gave him the doll and he was delighted with it.

But yesterday, she and Buddy and his mother sought the same bench and Buddy was playing with his new doll. And its right arm was missing!

"It's his own idea," she said. "He does that to all his dolls. You see he's crazy about his father. He thinks he is perfect in every way. And his father," and her voice trembled just a little and her eyes were misty, "his father lost an arm at Verdun."—New York Sun.

"WILD LIFE" COPIES FREE ON REQUEST

Twenty-five thousand copies of the 1931 edition of the Missouri Outdoor Life Guide published annually by the State Game and Fish Department, are now ready for distribution, according to John H. Ross, Commissioner of the department. The maps and guides are being sent postpaid to persons writing the Bureau of Public Information, Missouri Game and Fish Department, Jefferson City.

In addition to a map showing the highways, principal fishing streams and lakes, the two-color folder also shows strip maps of routes through Kansas City and St. Louis, guide maps of Bennett Spring, Roaring River, Montauk and Big Spring State parks, a schedule of accommodations available at each of the fourteen State parks, illustrations of native fish of Missouri and a list of streams in which they may be taken. Lists of float trip outfitters, upland game and waterfowl hunting places also are listed.

Roaring River State Park in Barry County will be opened for the 1931 season on Decoration Day. This is the only State Park where furnished modern cabin accommodations are available and is very popular with persons seeking rest and recreation in Missouri's Ozarks.

Roaring River State Park, comprising 2400 acres of scenic hill country, was presented to the State of Missouri by Dr. T. M. Sayman of St. Louis, in December, 1928. A beautifully picturesque country of wooded landscape, it is one of those natural wonders for which the Ozarks are unique.

The spring from which Roaring River rises is one of the features of the park. It issues from a hillside and forms the headwaters of Roaring River. It is one of the few large springs in the State immune from overflow. Rainbow Lake, on which trout fish h atchery equipment is located, lies between two ranges of hills. Swimming, fishing, exploring, hiking and camping with other outdoor sports may be enjoyed at this park. A swimming pool bath house is among the special attractions. Modern cabins are available and during the summer months a dining room is operated.

The park can be reached via a county road which connects with State Highway No. 4 a few miles east of Cassville or from a country road which connects with State Highway No. 37 at Seligman.

THE STRANGEST ARGUMENT

It is interesting to reflect that the strongest argument against the adoption of unqualified anti-gun laws by either the States or the Federal government, is the crime situation itself.

In many of the great cities in which crime flourishes and is a leading "industry", anti-gun laws are already in effect. Some of them are extremley strict. But only the law-abiding citizen feels the weight of the restriction. It seems not exaggerating to say that the anti-gun laws actually deprive the law-abiding of protection to their homes or places of business.

What is needed is correction for the unlawful use of firearms and not restriction of the vast bulk of citizens who use guns only for a safeguard or for sport. This would leave the good citizen with his constitutional right to protection for himself and his family.

Those zealots who are always soapboxing in favor of unqualified anti-gun laws, might do well to think this over if their real object is the reduction of crime and safety for society.

WORDS OF WISDOM

The Saturday Evening Post, in a recent well-worded, calm and deliberate editorial, points out a real danger from communist activities in the United States today. It shows that there is no reason for hysteria but that there is definite reason for curbing this menace within our own boundaries.

It believes in neither a fool's paradise type of indulgence on the one hand, nor violent suppression and reaction on the other.

In concluding its comments, it says: "It takes effort, even for a nation as great as this, to remain sound and whole".

Matchless economy with six-cylinder smoothness

"Better than 20 miles to the gallon." "Its cost-per-mile is the lowest of any car." "Never have to add oil between crankcase changes." "Drove from Ohio to California on a repair expense of $1.05." "It just runs and runs and runs."

—typical comments from owners of the Chevrolet Six

Chevrolet's 152" frame supports the body throughout its entire length

Why is it that Chevrolet—a big, powerful, smooth-running six—actually costs less to operate and maintain than any other car you can buy? The answer lies in five outstanding factors of Chevrolet economy:

1. Efficient Engine Design makes Chevrolet fuel consumption so low that 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline is nothing unusual for a Chevrolet owner.

2. Modern Chassis Design—as evidenced by Chevrolet's long heavy frame, four parallel-mounted springs, and smooth-running six-cylinder engine—increases the ability of the Chevrolet Six to run dependably, day after day.

3. Excellence of Manufacture also adds to Chevrolet dependability and long life. Chevrolet pistons, for instance, are built so carefully, and held true to such close limits of precision, that many owners have gone 20,000 miles or more without having their motors opened for major servicing.

4. High-Quality Materials are used throughout the Chevrolet car—costly nickel steel, chrome-vanadium steels, chrome-nickel steels—to assure trouble-free, low-cost service for tens of thousands of miles.

5. Economical Nationwide Service, with its low flat-rate charges on labor and genuine parts, is available at 10,000 dealers throughout the country, who also offer the protection of the most liberal owner's service policy ever to back a low-priced car.

Chevrolet's Owner's Service Policy is the most liberal ever offered in connection with a low-priced car

Remember—in addition to all these basic economies—Chevrolet offers the extra dollars-and-cents advantage of one of the lowest delivered prices on the market. And this cost may be spread over a period of many months by the liberal G.M.A.C. plan.

HIGH COURT REFUSES TO REVIEW FALL CASE

Washington, June 1.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, must present himself before the District of Columbia Supreme Court for commitment under a sentence of one year's imprisonment imposed on him for accepting a bribe.

That became imperative today, except in case of a presidential pardon, when the United States Supreme Court refused to review Fall's conviction of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil operator, in connection with awarding contracts and leases on the naval oil reserves. He was sentneced to one year in prison and fined $100,000.

Previously he had failed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to have the sentence set aside, and then, after announcing he would not carry the controversy to the United States Supreme Court, directed his counsel, Frank J. Hogan, to seek a review by the highest tribunal.

CHARGES ALLIED POWERS PLOTTED TO KILL WILSON

New York, June 1.—An alleged plot by the allied powers to kill Woodrow Wilson by slow poison while he was attending the Paris peace conference is detailed by Maj. Herbert O. Yardley in his book, "America's Black Chamber", published today by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Maj. Yardley, who was in charge of the secret American Cyrptographic Bureau during the war, asserts that a decoded message fell into his hands while he was serving with the peace commission in Paris which disclosed the plot. He goes so far as to intimate that the President's death several years later was the result of the plot.

"The reader may well appreciate the shock I received as I deciphered a telegram which reported an entente plot to assassinate President Wilson either by administering a slow poison or by giving him influenza in ice", Maj. Yardley writes.

"I have no way of knowing whether the plot had any truth in fact, and if it had, whether it succeeded. But there are these undeniable facts: President Wilson's first sign of illness occurred while he was in Paris, and he was soon to die a lingering death".

Maj. Gen. Peyton G. March, chief of staff of the army at the time, and others have avowed they never heard of such a "plot".

Maj. Yardley's book is the first to reveal the inner workings of the "black chamber", which operated secretly decoding confidential messages between representatives of foreign powers. From 1917 to 1929, the period of its existence, the "chamber" decoded 45,000 such messages, Yardley writes.

His work in connection with this and other activitis brought to Maj. Yardley the distinguished service medal from the secretary of war, "who pinned the medal on my lapel and winked at me".

In describing the activities of the bureau which he headed, Maj. Yardley tells how the safe of a foreign minister was opened and his secret code book photographed; how a beautiful girl was directed to become friendly with a secretary of a foreign embassy and to learn the nature of his code book, and how foreign spies made St. Patrick's Cathedral a rendezvous during the war period.

Maj. Yardley says the "black chamber" died suddenly and swiftly in 1929, when a new secretary of state took office. This secretary of state, he writes, held that it was unethical for this country to seek the secrets transmitted in foreign diplomatic messages.

'AMERICAN DIPLOMACY EASY ON BRAIN, BUT HELL ON FEET'

Washington, June 2.—The United States Ambassador to the Court of St. Jame's today summarized his opinion of American diplomacy as "easy on the brain but hell on the feet". Pushing his hat back on his head, Ambassador Dawes sat down on a convenient State Department table and put at end rumors he would resign from his post. He arrived today and is a guest at the White House.

He will remain until Thursday, returning then to Chicago in connection with the World's Fair, and will sail for England on the Idle de France June 24.

IN MEMORIUM

In memory of P. E. Jones, who died June 7, 1930:

Oh, what would I give to clasp his hand
His dear, kind face to see:
To hear his voice, to see his smile
That meant so much to me.
I o ften sit and think of him
When I am all alone
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own
Sadly missed by his wife.

The game bird situation in Missouri is given much consideration in the Game Survey of the North Central States, a book recently prepared by Aldo Leopold. Advance copies of the book have been received by the State Game and Fish Department.

The status of quail, pheasants, rabbits, wild turkey, prairie chicken, deer and waterfowl in Missouri is given in the book. An outstanding feature of especial interest to Missourians is the record furnished by Phil M. Smith of Callaway County showing the effects of agricultural improvement on the quail supply on his farm. Intensification of farming reduced the quail covies one-half between 1923 to 1929. An imaginary reconstruction of quail covies on the Smith farm also is shown on the maps published.

The book has been made available for general distribution through the American Game Protective Association at Washington, D. C.

Several hundred eggs of birds native to Missouri from the collection of Earl S. Crafton of Plattsburg, Mo., have been added recently to the bird exhibit in the Missouri Resources Museum at the State Capitol, according to Ernst Schwarz, department taxidermist and exhibitor. The collection was procured through Mrs. Grace C. Bland of Plattsburg, a sister of the collector.

More than forty different species of birds are represented in the collection. They were collected largely between 1890 and 1900 and all records were carefully preserved. Some of the eggs in the collection are from species generally considered not common to Missouri now. These eggs are being exhibited in the bird case and will be known as the Earl S. Crafton Collection. Duplicate nesting from the collection have been given to the University of Missouri and the Children's Museum at St. Joseph.

VOLUME 19 — SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI FRIDAY MORNIN,G JUNE 5, 1931 — NUMBER 70

Connty Clerk's Annual Report Shows Favorable Balance All Departments

Taxpayers in Scott County who ask now and then "where does the money go", will find their question answered in this issue of The Standard—insofar as expenditures and receipts for the County are concerned up to March 1, 1931.

The annual financial statement prepared in the office of J. Sherwood Smith, County Clerk, is carried in this issue beginning on page two. Every department in the County is required by law to keep an accurate record of receipts and expenditures, and such report is then published annually in a paper selected by the County Court.

Sikeston Drum and Bugle Corps To Attend District Legion Convention In Bluff

Poplar Bluff, June 3.—Legionnaires from all over Southern Missouri are planning to attend the 14th District American Legion Convention to be held here Sunday, June 21.

A special Frisco train, to be known as "The Legionnaire" will bring delegates from Chaffee, Cape Girardeau and their surrounding territories to Poplar Bluff, arriving here at 11 o'clock convention morning. The crew will be composed of Legion men. Leaving Chaffee, the train will make Cape and will stop at all intermediate points, picking up ex-service men, their wives and sweethearts. This one train alone is expected to bring between 300 and 400 visitors to Poplar Bluff.

Cape Girardeau will send its drum and bugle corps and clown band. The 140th Infantry band will be brought here under the auspices of the Legion and the Chamber of Commerce and business men of Chaffee. The Sikeston Drum and Bugle Corps will also be on hand as will several other similar organizations.

Not only will the convention here draw Legionnaires from the 14th District, but the 13th District will also contribute its share. Reservations have already been made from Illmo, Fornfelt, Commerce, Hamburg, Benton and other towns.

The Legion Auxiliary will be in session here, simultaneously with the Legionnaires. Probably 200 women from various towns in the 14th District are planning on meeting here. A special convention hall will be arranged for them.

Brown-Mabry Post of the American Legion, who will be hosts to their comrades of the district here, are making elaborate entertainment plans. At a meeting last night, committees in charge of detail work reported. The local men are expecting in the neighborhood of 1000 visitors.

A program for convention day is being drawn up and will be announced later. It will probably include a baseball game, boxing macthes and a parade, among other features.

NEW HIGHWAY 60 PAVING OPENS SOON

According to the weekly highway report issued by the Division 10 office here, new concrete pavement on U. S. Route 60 between Dexter and Dudley will be opened June 6 thereby eliminating the detour.

All roads in this division are in good condition, the report concludes.

The department reported, however, that another detour would be established between Essex and Gray Ridge about June 10, at which time contractors will start paving operations. It is impossible to tell just when this will be completed. The new project is 5.5 miles in length.

Highway 67 between Silvia and Coldwater, where construction work for several months has blocked traffic between Bluff and St. Louis, will be opened August 1, it was announced. That is a tentative date, however.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Moll and children of Cairo came over Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Moll returned to Cairo Thursday, while Mrs. Moll and children remained over until Sunday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Sheppard.

The management of The Standard appreciates the loyal support of its assistants in all departments during the rather lengthy hours and days necessary to issue our June 2 progress edition. While we realize that we have established no record of any kind, it is a fact that with one linotype and a four-page press, it was a huge task to meet regular twice-a-week editions, and still produce a decent looking issue of forty-four pages.

FRISCO GRADE CROSSING IN SCOTT COUNTY ASKED

Jefferson City, June 3.—The State Highway Commission today asked the Public Service Commission for an order requiring the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company to join with it in elimination of a grade crossing at the intersection of Highway No. 55 with the Frisco tracks in Scott County.

The Highway Commission declares traffic conditions are such that public safety will be assured only by construction of a viaduct to carry the highway over the railroad tracks. The viaduct will cost $40,944 and an order requiring the railway company to pay the cost of constructing the viaduct and approaches is asked.

PLUNGES OFF HIGH BRIDGE SPAN, LIVES

Cape Girardeau, June 1.—Thadeus McGuighan, 29 years old, formerly of York, Pa., who has been living in Cape Girardeau for two months, was recovering today at the St. Francis Hospital from shock suffered late Sunday afternoon when he leaped from the traffic bridge into the Mississippi River.

Plunging from the highest point on the span, McGuighan hurtled downward 65 feet, landing on his back in the water. Although stunned momentarily he regained sufficiently to swim to the Missouri bank about 200 yeards south of the bridge where he was pulled from the water exhausted.

"I am tired of it and just wanted to end it all", he is reported to have told rescuers who pulled him from the water and carried him to an ambulance in which he was taken to the hospital. Later he denied to hospital attendants that he attempetd to take his life and declared that he "only jumped off the bridge for fun".

McGuighan told C. E. Kennamer, 321 South Lorimier street, one of those present after he was dragged from the river, that he was tired of living and jumped in the river to end his troubles, Kennamer said.

HODGE DECKER SUICIDE ATTEMPT SUNDAY NIGHT IN BARBER SHOP FAILS

A suicide attempt on the part of Hodge Decker, barber, last Sunday night or early Monday morning, failed when Decker's nerves failed him. He had succeeded in slashing one arm in three places with a razor, but evidently reconsidered his rashness and successfully stopped the blood flow with anticeptic astringent powder.

Officer Gid Daniels and Toots Nall reported the incident Monday morning about 2:30 o'clock, while visiting The Standard office, while workmen were placing the finishing touches to the June 2 Progress Edition. The two officers were first concerned with finding the source of smoke noticed by Nall. They found workmen at the Malone theatre burning accumulated rubbish in the lot back of the Decker Shop on South New Madrid street. While there, they noticed that the back door of the barber shop stood open, so they entered to investigate. They found ample evidence of a suicide attempt.

Decker, however, had been taken home earlier that night. He was found in bed at his rooming place in a Front Street apartment. He has subsequently been removed to the Emergency Hospital, where his condition today was reported satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Matthews and sons are spending a few days in St. Louis.

The Co-Workers of the Methodist church served dinner to the 150 delegates at the church Wednesday, who are attending the Missionary meeting of the St. Louis Distrinct.

Five Hurt As New Auto Is Hit By Potashnick Truck Near The Cape

Cape Girardeau, June 3.—Five persons were injured, two seriously, Tuesday night when a new automobile in which they were driving along the Highway 61 loop west of the city limits was struck from the rear by a motor truck of the Potashnick Motor Truck Lines of Sikeston and was catapulated into a ditch partly filled with water.

Cleve Crites of Jackson ,member of the firm, Crites and Kern Motor Co., 41 South Main Street, was the worst injured, suffering a fractured rib, wrenched back and sprained right ankle. He was removed to the St. Francis Hospital and X-ray examinations were being made today to determine the exact extent of his injuries.

Others injured were: Mrs. G. C. Gockel, 108 South Spanish street, who suffered a wrenched back and cuts and bruises about the forehead and body; Mrs. Robert Fenton, 108 South Spanish street, who received cuts on her forehead, bruised left side and severe lacerations and bruises on both legs; Geraldine Gockel, 14, 108 South Spanish street, who suffered a broken collar bone and cuts and bruises; Leon Gockel, driver of the car, who suffered a laceration of his hip and bruises about the body.

They were occupants of a new Studebaker special sedan, which had been sold by the motor company to Garnet Hahn of Lutesville and was to be delivered today. The speedometer of the car at the time of the wreck showed that it had been driven only five miles. The car had been taken out for a drive around the loop to limber it up preparatory to its delivery.

Frank Broshears, driver of the truck, was not injured. The truck suffering only a bent front bumper and loss of one of the headlamps in the crash. The Studebaker, valued at $1195, was a total loss.

At the hospital Crites told a Missourian reporter that his party was driving north along the highway at about 20 miles an hour, being struck by the truck before being aware of its presence. The Studebaker was tossed from the highway about 100 yards south of the intersection with the Gordonville road. The embankment over which it plunged, end over end three times, is about 15 feet high. The car landed on its top in the water and the occupants were forced to crawl out through the doors.

Force of the impact of the truck against the car caved in the rear end and smashed the body, and also tore the rear and front seats loose. The steering wheel was broken and the front end of the car was partly buried in the mud and water. Strangely enough only the rear glass and that in the left front door was broken.

Broshears in making out a report of the wreck for Gene Potashnick, his employer, stated that he was driving 25 miles an hour when he hit the car. He said the Studebaker was parked on the pavement.

Occupants of the car, however, denied this. Just before the crash Crites said he heard one of the women in the rear seat remark that the car behind them had "mighty bright lights".

Potashnick, over the telephone, said the truck, a Reo speed wagon, was controlled to a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour by an automatic governor. He also said his trucks were heavily bonded and insured for protection against accidents.

Potashnick came to Cape Girardeau as soon as he was informed of the accident and gave what assistance he could to those injured and launched an investigation of the accident. Broshears continued on to St. Louis after the wreck victims had been cared for. He was enroute to St. Louis with a load of hogs at the time.—Cape Missourian.

A minor labor disturbance at the local Federal Postoffice building site Wednesday morning was promptly met with checks in full and a discharge for the two labor agitators and a small increase in hour wages for the rest of the workmen.

The men staged no demonstration. They merely refused to work Wednesday morning and notified Hiram Lloyd, Jr., to that effect through one spokesman. Their demands for thirty-five cents an hour for common labor was granted, but the alleged ring leaders in the trouble were discharged immediately. The rest returned to work.

In some manner or other, the rumor gained ground that Mayor N. E. Fuchs, "had established a wage scale locally of twenty-five cents an hour". This report was denied by Mayor Fuchs Thursday morning who produced copies of letters to major building contractors and bidders on the project outlining a local scale of "35 cents an hour for common labor, and 65 cents for skilled labor". Copies of letters to that effect are on file in the offices of the Hiram Lloyd Construction Co., and in the files of Mayor Fuchs.

Mr. Lloyd regretted the matter exceedingly Thursday mroning, saying that he attempted to meet the current wage scale in effect by other contractors in the city. He found that to be 25c, he stated, and added that he had no intention of trying to "beat down" the price of honest labor.

Work on the Federal building is going forward rapidly. Steel workers Thursday afternoon finished placing reinforcing and temperature rods for the first floor. Conduit has been placed in the forms also, and it is planned to pour concrete for this floor level beginning Friday morning if weather permits. All steel beams, plumbing, electrical work and forms have been set thus far.

Special precautions to assure a waterproof basement have been specified in the plans. The work includes a double coat of tar and pitch and two outside coats of cement.

Decorative Indiana limestone pieces and the cornerstone were unloaded this week, and carried to the building site. A carload of face brick is expected daily so that work may continue without interruption.

CAN MAN RULE OWN HOME TO BE DECIDED

When L. B. Herring, 50, grabbed the family shotgun in self defense against attacks of his son, Lucian Herring and son-in-law, Luther Jines last Tuesday, he did not not realize that his action would be followed by court proceedings. Wednesday he faced charges of felonious assault and was carted off to the Scott County jail in custody of Tom Scott, Sheriff.

Herring's story to Judge Myers reveals that he attempted to settle a family row between his in-laws and son Tuesday morning. The affair resulted in a free-for-all fight and he, in self-defense, stood off the charges of his son and son-in-law with a shot gun. That ended the fight.

His son, however, filed papers charging felonious assault, and the father countered with charges of assault and battery and disturbing the peace. Young Herring pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1 and costs. Jines decided to stand trial on the charges and will be heard June 8 before Judge Myers.

The elder Herring will stand preliminary trial some time this week to decide, incidently, whether the nominal "head of the house" has authority in his own home.

TWO SIKESTON GIRLS MAKE HIT VISITING ACADEMY

Lexington, June 2.—Among the very popular visitors at the Wentworth Military Academy commencement here during the past week were Misses Nannabelle Wilson and Elizabeth Bowman of Sikeston, who were guests of Capt. and Mrs. Robert O. Rollison of the Academy faculty. Miss Bowman is a niece and Miss Wilson a cousin of Capt. and Mrs. Rollison.

The young ladies were guests of honor at several social affairs, including two bridge parties, a theatre party, and a dinner. Both attended the final commencement ball at Wentworth, and Miss Bowman, with Cadet Major Harry Appleton of Chicago led the grand march.

In company with R. A. McCord, Jno. A. Matthews and Al Daley, the editor took a swing around the circle Wednesday afternoon to see how the crops looked south and southwest of Sikeston. We drove south to the Kewanee lane, then west to the road leading south to Lilbourn. The bottom, or black land, to the west of Kewanee never looked better. Corn was up to a good stand and the fields were clean. Some of the corn looked to be knee high and all of good color. Oat and wheat more than waist high and very fine. Just after turning south off the Kewanee road, we stopped at a field where a man was cutting a mixed crop of hay that was very rank and estimated to make two and a half tons to the acre. The mixture was red clover, timothy and volunteer wheat. The mule team had to rest after each round as the growth was so heavy. Through this section is some of the best land in the world. The next stop was at the R. A. McCord farm near Lilbourn. No grain is grown on this farm. Nothing but pasture land and hay crops. A 30-acre field of Kobe Lespedeza was a sight to the uninitiated. It was as thick as the hair on a dog's back and reminded one of walking on a htick Brussels carpet. At this time the Lespedeza was but four inches tall, but makes a growth to fourteen inches and is self-seeding. Mr. McCord expects to cut two and a half tons to the acre from this field, then turn sheep on it. The hay is more relished by stock than either alfalfa or pea hay, and brings a higher price on the market. This is a sheep ranch and at this time McCord has upwards of 260 head that are thriving on pasture. Recently he topped the market with a batch of lambs that weighed 75 pounds. He has plenty of barn and shed room to place his hay for the sheep in bad weather and they require very little attention. This was a delightful three-hour drive.

The publisher wishes to express his appreciation of the close co-operation given by the office force while producing the Tuesday issue of The Standard. Each of them put in long hours and all worked together, else the paper could not have been issued on time. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Pleas Malcolm and A. L. Wallhausen secured the advertising, Wallhausen made the dummy, secured cuts and prepared copy, O. E. Latham, W. B. Lankford, and Earl Ward s et and distributed the ads. Ward did all the press work, Billie Gardner and A. B. Moll cast the cuts for ads, Miss Hyacinth Sheppard set all the type for the paper, while the editor got a little copy, made up the forms, looked after the press work and was generally in the way. Our office assistants have always been ready and willing to come early and stay late to help in a pinch, knowing the success of the sheet meant their checks would be good. We are thankful to have such loyal assistants.

Word has come to The Standard office of complaints of final bills rendered by the Missouri Utilities Co. of being too high—higher than ever before. The Standard has not been asked to say a word for the Utilities Co., but in fairness to them and to put those who complain right, will say: Bills being presented recently were taken from the sealed meters as left by the Municipal Light Co. and were the final readings. The Utilities Co. read meters about the 15th of each month and bills are rendered on the first. The final bills included the piece of the month after the reading on May 15 along with the reading from April 15 to May 15, which adds almost half a month more than on previous months. The manager, nor the assistants, could not force the reading of the sealed meters, and besides, they are not that sort of folks. We trust this will be received in good part by all concerned and will explain things to late consumers of the Missouri Utilities Co. juice.

The publisher and entire force of The Standard appreciates the compliments paid us for the big paper issued the first of the week. The advertisements for forty of the pages and the press work thereon were accomplished by the force from Friday morning until 4:00 o'clock of the morning of publication. The editor handset the heads and made up the forms of the entire edition, besides getting a portion of the copy and doing "strong talk" for the force, which was not bad far an 68-year-old boy.

AUNT JANE SPEAKS HER MIND

In this day of multiple divorce and allegations many are expressing their views on marriage. Perhaps I can make no contribution of value, but I am tempted to try.

No successful marriage just happens. Marriage, like a house, must be built from the foundation up. When a couple decides to build a house they must know how much they can put into it and what kind of a house they want. After much discussion and compromsie the final plans are taken to a architect or carpenter.

If we could have "blue prints" to build marriage, and keep them constantly before us, we might build better. A house thrown together in a haphazard and slip-shod fashion cannot successfully weather the storms.

The best arranged and most carefully planned house has some defects. We find we overlooked some important details. If we were building again we would do this and that. Do we walk away from a house because it is not absolutely perfect? We do not; we have too much invested. We try to repair it and improve it, and we stay with it.

It takes more than money to build a house; it takes thought and careful planning. No house is built on desire; it requires lumber and nails and tools. No fairy waves a wand and brings a house out of the ether. Somebody must dig and sweat.

In marriage we are our own architects and carpenters. No amount of money can hire a substitute. Each party has definite duties and obligations and no weakling can hope to succeed. A lazy careless person can't build much of a house. So it is with marriage. Anybody can get married, but it takes real men and women to build together.

Every couple should be carefully questioned by the recorder to make sure they have duly considered the step they are taking. But no, each marriage license means a few dollars added to the country's funds, and each divorce means money to the courts and lawyers.

We have commercialized the greatest institution in the world. No wonder we have so many disasters.

—AUNT JANE.

And speaking of Jewish dishes we had "Soloman" salad at our house. The lady in the next block states, also, that they have Jewish beer at home. "My husband, he brews it", she explains.

Recently we published a story about Ben F. "Marshall's" unsuccessful attempt to imitate the Prince of Wales' favorite stunt ahorse. Ben F. was pitched headlong over an automobile.

Now it develops that it was Ben F. Carroll instead of Marshall, and we are left with apologies to make. To the Horse, To Carroll and To Marshall.

We notice where a Kansas City linotype operator committed suicide, leaving a note to his mother, saying he believed he was on the verge of insanity.

We believe he was. In the first place, the guy who invented the overgrown, metal-eating typewriter went nuts making it.

And also the K. C. lad was on the verge of nothing at all. He musta been more or less crazy ever to begin learning to be an op.

Our girl friend observes that there are lots of bright cracks after dark.

Printers will understand this. The other night our printer wanted a 36-em quad. The office devil rushed up to the head man at the case with "Hay, mister, Earl wants a half inch of white space".

And to those who have seen The Standard's "Art Gallery", we wish to observe that our Kruschen Salts girl is still holding her own.

A bottle of salt solution kept in the medicine closet might inspire members of the family to clear up that cold condition between the nose and throat.

FOREST GIANTS MEASURED WITHOUT LOFTY CLIMB

Washington, June 2.—The National Park Service has measured the forest giants in Yosemite, but it didn't climb them to obtain the height.

It used a triangulation method for the heights and a tape for the horizontal distances.

It found the tallest tree in Yosemite was 300 feet high and the tallest in Mariposa Grove 293 feet. The grizzly giant in Mariposa Grove, the third largest, was 93 feet in circumference.

The Park Service said the largest tree in Merced Grove began its life as a seedling on the edge of Moss Creek and during the thousand or so years of its life had grown over the center of the stream.

Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee An Earthquake Formation

By Mrs. J. L. Haguewood

Rutherford, Tenn., June 2.—"Near the mighty Father of Waters in the Western Tennessee country, on the banks of a little streamlet young Reelfoot built his village. Near to Bayou DeChein like light of stars of evening were two small lakes, the Upper and Lower Blue Hole, gleams of golden glory, the sun cast on their waters. Down to the water's edge came weasel, mink and red deer, the bobcat, bear and otter, and every kind of fowl, and so it was the Blue Hole became so very famous . . . . Each year the "great white hunter" would come to Reelfoot's village and thus was born a friendship 'twixt Reelfoot and the "pale face".

This Indian legend, rich in the lore of West Tennessee, recalls the days when this broad expanse of empire was people only by the Red Man. He had his trails and he knew the forest intimately. The white man had only the trails, one, the Massac Trace, which entered the State, south of Somerville, and passed in a northwesterly direction.

Another, the United States road, which entered the State near Waverly and which ran due west, over which came the early settlers that ventured into the new country.

When the treaties with the Cherokees in 1806-07 relinquished for the State 335,000 acres for settlement, the pioneering spirit led a few westward. We have reason to believe that the great white hunter was Davy Crockett, for we have record that he experienced the great earthquake of 1811-12.

He may have followed the Massac Trace, which had been made before any settlement in West Tennessee. Or he may have come over the United States road, which was made for carrying supplies to the Indians. Or he may have plunged directly into the wilderness, scorning the blazed trails, and with the sun only for a guide, blazed a new trail and, from his own account, reached the Obion River, and there fixed the site for his new home.

We have followed him through the succeeding months, 150 miles from his family, exploring the wilderness, establishing a home to which he might bring his people. We have followed him through the hardships he encountered, the escapes from death in his adventures. All this was to the liking of Davy Crockett, who saw in the new country, with the abundant game it held, a hunter's paradise.

When he had settled, and having a supply of ammunition, he set out for a long hunt to satisfy the pioneering spirit within him and to tread where no white man had been before. Great expectations of many discoveries led him on. Although the weather was bitterly cold, and it was sleeting, that was of no concern. He could make his camp as comfortable as his cabin.

He carried his two good dogs, and his horses and his son. His way led him westward into the section between the Obion River and Reelfoot Lake. Many a bear was killed. Many a thrilling encounter with wild beasts was experienced. After hunting arduously for days, most individuals would have been satisfied and would have sought rest. But not Davy Crockett. Instead, he pressed onward.

The woods now became rough and hilly, and the fallen timbers and the cracks in the earth made by the earthquake of the year before were a source of danger, and he was forced to crawl for long distances to avoid falling and breaking his gun. For miles he picked his way along in this manner, with the dogs following, running ahead, often treeing some animal. Once he was lost from all of them. Distantly he could hear them baying, but he could not reach them.

In the attempt, he had come upon an unknown stream of water. He plunged into the icy current and waded across, but now his difficulties began. He found himself part way up a steep hill and getting farther away from his dogs.

After groping along in the darkness trying to find his bearings he at last reached the place where a large bear was treed by the dogs. The son and his horses were left far behind. From experience the son knew he should strike camp and wait for his father. Meanwhile, the bear was brought to the ground by a shot from the hunter and a fierce fight with the dogs ensued.

Alternately the scrambling mass of bear and dogs fell into and crawled out of a deep fissure which had been made by the earthquake. Finally, Davy Crockett crawled into the fissure, underneath the bear, and feeling along his shaggy side, found the right place and plunged his knife into his heart.

Crocket sought to build a fire. The leather breeches, wet in crossing the stream, were now frozen stiff. He was so tired from the activities of the day that he was unable to keep warm from the further exercise. He was unable to kindle a fire. The materials were wet and the wood green and the weak flame served only to aggravate the more.

He was growing numb and he realized something must be done. He resorted to the expedient of climbing a small tree and as quickly coasting down the trunk, all through the night. The heavy friction caused from sliding down the tree, kept the spark of life in his body until morning, when his son found him and carried him to camp.

Crockett was so exhausted he felt that he could sleep a week. He stretched himself out on a bear skin before the camp fire where his son fed him warm food and drink. All the day was passed in camp. When night came, the fires were built up, the warm skins made ready for sleeping, with the dogs at rest nearby.

They had settled down for the night, after heaping fresh fuel upon the fire and were sleeping soundly when suddenly they were awakened by the earth swaying and rocking violently beneath them. For a moment they were dazed.

But with the earth swaying beneath them and trees crackling and with great fissues in the earth opened before they eyes, they were soon awakened to the fact that they were in a cataclysm of nature. The frightened dogs set up a howling which only intensified the terror.

The rustle of fleeing animals and cries of beasts, mingled with the rumbling noises formed an experience terrifying.

After awhile the violence subsided and they settled down around the campfire to exchange impressions of the phenomenon and when drowsiness came, passed the remainder of the night undisturbed.

History tells us this was on January 23, 1812.

Tradition tells us 'while on an expedition into the southern country, young Reelfoot went to Natchez, where dwelt a veteran war chief. His only daughter, Starlight, was dark-eyed, tall and slender and Reelfoot wooed the maiden, who smiled with joy upon him; then he appealed to the old chief

"Give me the lovely princess to cheer my life and wigwam'. Straightway the old chief answered, refused in voice of thunder, which sent the lover away.

"When shades of evening enveloped all the landscape, young Reelfoot seized the maiden and journeyed to his people. To Tennessee he bore her and by the Blue Hole Water the lovely dark-eyed princess brought gladness to his wigwam and sunshine to his people.

"The summer quickly sped. Autumn winds were blowing, a change, a mighty blight came over Reelfoot's country! The fish refused to live in the waters of the Blue Hole; the bobcat, deer and panther all fled from out the bottoms. The wrath of the Great Spirit descended full upon them, because of Reelfoot's action".

When morning came and daylight revealed the havoc wrought by the earthquake, Davy Crockett determined to go nearer to the scene of the disaster. They broke camp and set out in a westerly direction. Nearer and nearer they came to the lake region. The countryside now held untold allure for them. All about lay many great mounds of sand thrown up from the fissures newly opened in the earth. Many a tree had been wrecked, its branches torn and twisted, with the trunks broken off.

Exploring to his heart's content, taking minute cognizance of the vast changes which were revealed in nature, Davy Crockett finally reached the high bluff overlooking the lake and there from its brow, where perchance young Reelfoot had in days before looked out across his village, saw instead the vast expanse of water, miles and miles to the right and left of him, filled with broken trunks of cypress, and broad expanse of blue depths. Beheld, instead of Upper and Lower Blue Holes with the Indian village around them, the treacherous expanse of "Reelfoot", the grave of these vanquished Americans.

HIGHWAY BUILDINGS HERE COMBINE UTILITY AND BEAUTY

Plans now on file with the Division 10 engineer's office here call for modern, fireproof and well-arranged buildings to complete the Highway group at the intersection of Highways 60 and 61 in the East section of the city. The two proposed structures of stone and brick will serve as Division 10 office and garage headquarters.

The office structure, a two-story and basement building, will be 52x42 fet. The basement will contain a materials testing laboratory and storage rooms. First floor plans call for general offices, four private offices, while the second floor will accommodate the drafting department, right-of-way and surveys and plans department.

Travelers on Highway 61 will find the office structure on the northeast corner of the lot. Immediately back of this building will be located the garage buldniig. The latter was the first of the group of three to be constructed. It was completed this spring, and has been used for the past several months by that department.

The garage structure is to be a one-story affair with a small boiler room basement. The dimensions are 66x134 feet, constructed of red matt face brick and hollow tile interior. Carthage stone or Indana limiestone will be used extensively on the main office structure.

Bids for the construction of both buildings will be opened by the Missouri State Highway Commission at Jefferson City, June 15.

How One Woman Lost 102 Lbs. of Fat

Almost Unbelievable—Nevertheless True

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa., October 31, 1930.

Lions Vote To Sponsor Play Ground, Co-Operating With Legion, C. of C. And School

The Sikeston Lions Club last Wednesday voted to assist in defraying part of the expense incident to establishing a Sikeston Public Playground each week-day morning under the direction of W. B. Miller. Co-operating financially are the American Legion, Chamber of Commerce, the School Board and Sikeston Lions Club.

While plans as to age groups, schedules, games, etc., are still immature, Mr. Miller intends to begin active work next Monday morning, June 8, using the grade school lot.

For years the movement to establish a local playground, under the supervision of a paid director, has received attention, but until this spring the matter was merely passivly treated.

This spring and early summer the proposal was again brought up. Clint H. Denman, Lions Club member, boosted the project materially and is in large measure responsible for getting it underwritten finacially by the Lions Club and other organizations mentioned.

The idea uppermost in the minds of promoters is of course keeping children occupied in healthful, clean play instead of loafing on the streets and getting into mischief.

A full schedule of games, and play projects, hikes, swimming parties and the like will be released from time to time by Mr. Miller. The playground will be open for two months.

PORTAGEVILLE SCHOOL CONTRACT TO SUTTERFIELD

The Sutterfield Construction Company Wednesday was awarded the contract to construct a new High School building for the City of Portageville. According to J. A. Sutterfield, senior member of the firm, the successful bid was approximately $43,000.

There were eighteen general contractors at the letting, including four bids lower than the Sutterfield figure. One in particular reached a figure of $1577 under the successful bid. The proposed building is to replace one recently destroyed by fire.

Sutterfield has been successful in several major building projects since moving headquarters to Sikeston. He constructed the New Madrid High School and hotel building, the Sikeston Municipal Light Plant building and several minor buildings projects nearby.
